FOR SALE THE IRON SCREW STEAMSHIP SOUCHAYS,

593 tons builder's, or 436 tons net measurement; built at Shields in 1859.

This fine ship has just been overhauled, and thoroughly repaired, at great expense, and is now in splendid order in every department. Her performances in the trade between Sydney and Auckland, where for three consecutive voyages she made the distance of 1400 miles in five days twelve hours each way, have shown her to be, with one exception, the fastest steamer out of the port of Melbourne. Her ease in a seaway, and the absence of vibration from the engines and propeller, have earned for her the favour of all her passengers. Her engines, by Marshall, of Shields, are of 140 horse-power, and have three cylinders. For compactness, finish, strength, and ease of working they are unequalled.

The boilers produce an ample supply of steam, and will last for six years to come. The bunkers contain coal sufficient for five days' consumption.

Her capacity for cargo is large. She has had on board 650 tons dead weight and measurement.

The saloon and state rooms are handsome and commodious, and well fitted.

She is in every respect well and expensively found, and can be sent to sea at an hour's notice.

Purchasers are invited to inspect her, where she now lies, in the Yarra ban'n.

WOODVILLE, JARRETT, and CO., 78, Collins-street West, Melbourne.

DINNEFORD'S PURE FLUID MAGNESIA has been during twenty-five years emphatically sanctioned by the medical profession, and universally accepted by the public as the best remedy for acidity of the stomach, heartburn, headache, gout, and indigestion, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions, more especially for ladies and children. Combined with the acidulated lemon syrup, it forms an agreeable effervescing draught, in which its aperient qualities are much increased. During hot seasons, and, above all, in hot climates, the regular use of this simple and elegant remedy has been found highly beneficial. Manufactured (with the utmost attention to strength and purity) by DINNEFORD and CO., 172, New Bond-street, London; and sold by all respectable chemists throughout the world. Wholesale agents for Sydney, Messrs. J. and E. ROW, Pitt-street; and Messrs. WORMS and CO., Wynyard-lane.

WHAT IS CHLORODYNE?—Chlorodyne is a word that was coined by Dr. J. Collis Browne, M.R.C.S.L. (Ex-army Medical Staff), to denote a new principle or remedial agent discovered by him, and nowhere described in medical works or Pharmacopœias.
Chlorodyne is a liquid taken in drops according to age. It invariably relieves pain of whatever kind; creates a calm refreshing sleep; allays irritation of the nervous system when all other remedies fail; leaving no bad effects like opium or laudanum, and can be taken when none other can be tolerated. Its value in saving life in infancy is not easily estimated; a few drops will subdue the irritation of teething, prevent and arrest convulsions, cure whooping cough, spasms, and flatus at once.
Among invalids it allays the pain of neuralgia, rheumatism, gout, &c. It soothes the weary achings of consumption, relieves the soreness of the chest, cough and expectoration; and cures all chest affections, such as asthma, bronchitis, palpitation, &c. It checks diarrhœa, alvine discharges, or spasms, and colics of the intestines, &c.
Wholesale supplying agents for New South Wales and Queensland—Messrs. M. A. WORMS and CO., 21, Wynyard-lane, Sydney, who have always an extensive stock on hand.

MALZENA.—This highly esteemed food for invalids, and for the table, can be supplied to the trade, from shipments direct from New York. WILLIAM WOLFEN and CO., agents for Sydney, Circular Quay.

THE BEST REMEDY FOR COLDS, COUGHS INFLUENZA, MEASLES, FEVER, &c.—NEWBERY'S DR. JAMES' POWDER is the best and most renowned remedy, in this changeable climate, for colds, coughs, measles, and influenza, which carry off thousands yearly, and are but modified types of fever caused by obstructed perspiration. A medicine like NEWBERY'S DR. JAMES' POWDER is particularly valuable, by promoting a gentle perspiration, a single dose causing immediate relief, and in rheumatism, ague, and asthma has been proved most useful. The experience of 116 years has increased its reputation, both with the public and medical profession, who prescribe it largely, while by its ease of administration it is unsurpassed as a family medicine. As many spurious imitations are sold, it is necessary to observe that the name of the proprietor, "F. NEWBERY, M.D., No. 45, St. Paul's Churchyard," London, is on each Government Stamp. Packets, 2s. 9d. Bottles, 4s. 6d. and 11s. Sold by all medicine vendors.
☞ Ask for Newbery's Dr. James' Powder. Established A.D. 1746. Agents for Sydney—Mr. JENKINS, chemist, 252, George-street; Messrs. J. and E. ROW, Pitt-street.

GELL'S DALBY'S CARMINATIVE.—The best known remedy for the cure of diarrhœa, and those alarming disorders of the stomach and bowels to which children of all ages are so liable is the ORIGINAL (GELL'S) DALBY'S CARMINATIVE.
Ninety years of success have proved it invaluable also for the cure of cholera, and the cholic in grown persons.
The public is cautioned against the imitations, which are sold at the same price, 1s. 9d. Ask for "Gell's Dalby's Carminative." Every bottle of the genuine bears the name of "Newbery" on the label and Government stamp. Sold by all chemists.
FRANCIS NEWBERY and SONS, (established A.D. 1746), 45, St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Sold by Messrs. J. and E. ROW, Sydney.

 Orders to be made payable by London houses.

CAUTION against COUNTERFEITS.—None are genuine unless the signature of R. and L. PERRY and CO. is affixed to each wrapper, and blown on the bottle; and each bottle is protected by a patent capsule, bearing the proprietors' names and address in full. The greatest medical discovery of the age.

Sold at Messrs. R. and L. PERRY and CO.'s Wholesale Depot, No. 19, Berners-street, Oxford-street, London, and at their Depot, 259, Pitt-street (near the Victoria Theatre), Sydney.
Caution.—The high repute and extensive sale of Messrs. Perry's medicines having induced many unprincipled individuals to foist upon the public illicit and spurious compositions of their own preparation, Messrs. Perry beg to inform persons purchasing their medicines that none are genuine unless the signature of R. and L. Perry and Co. is affixed on the outside of each wrapper of the Cordial Balm of Syriacum and Detersive Essence, and their name and address, and also that of the medicine is blown on the bottle, to imitate which is felony; and in addition, all Messrs. Perry's medicines sold in Australia, India, China, and all other parts of the world, will be protected by a patent capsule annexed to each bottle, bearing their name and address in full; and every packet and bottle must be accompanied by a copy of the pamphlet entitled, "Extracts from 'The Silent Friend,'" which is included in the price charged for the medicine.

KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS.—Kaye's Worsdell's Pills.—Kaye's Worsdell's Pills.—This invaluable Medicine, which has for nearly half a century had a large and increasing sale throughout the whole of the
is now introduced to the colonies with the greatest confidence.
It is admirably adapted to supply a great want—that of a remedy always at hand, easy of application, and certain in its results.
These Pills are a purely vegetable preparation, and may be taken at any time by either sex without fear of danger. They act upon the bowels mildly yet effectually, and, by their fine tonic, aromatic, and aperient properties, they remove all oppressive accumulations, regulate the secretions of the liver and bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. Unlike many remedies, they do not induce liability to take cold or establish a necessity for the habitual use of purgatives, and are thus strongly recommended as the BEST FAMILY MEDICINE.
To emigrants and persons residing in the colonies these Pills are invaluable, as the very numerous testimonials which reach the proprietor as the spontaneous expression of gratitude on the part of heads of families and others, prove that, except in rare instances, where Kaye's Worsdell's Pills are used, no other medicine is ever required.
Prepared solely by JOHN KAYE, Esq., of Prospect Hall, Woodford, Essex.
Sold by all chemists and other dealers in patent medicines, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d.
Wholesale Depot, 22, Broad-street, London.

TO INVALIDS.—DAVENPORT'S TONIC SYRUP, patronised by her Majesty the Queen of England, is now, for the first time, introduced in New South Wales. This syrup is a compound containing various elements requisite for a healthy sustenance of the body, and is found particularly serviceable in cases of debility arising from residence in warm climates, long sickness, or excessive fatigue. Strumous disease or scrofula, is rapidly subdued by its influence. In all cases of debility, emaciation, indigestion, loss of appetite, lowness of spirits, and lassitude, it is speedily efficacious. By the continuance of its administration for a few weeks, the most deteriorated constitution may be wholly restored to health.
Prepared by John T. Davenport, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, W.C., London, from a prescription of Dr. J. Collis Browne's; and sold wholesale by his agents in Sydney, Messrs. WORMS and CO., and retail by Mr. JENKINS, 252, George-street.

WATSON'S VEGETABLE WORM POWDERS.—The original and only really useful remedy for effectually removing Worms from old and young. Thousands can bear testimony to their beneficial effects. Each packet (price 1s.) contains three powders. JOHN WATSON, druggist, 593, Brickfield-hill.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Precaution.—The cause of half the maladies of mankind is due to the neglect of trifling symptoms, which these pills will cure at once. They remove coughs, colds, indigestion, headache, lassitude, and low spirits, with certainty and safety. Sold by SARPY and MUSGRAVE, 93, King-street, Sydney.

HARPER TWELVETREES' GLYCERINE SOAP POWDER.—Dr. Friedrich Olshausen, Professor of Chemistry, Hamburg, certifies that its "efficiency and harmlessness are owing to the purity of ingredients used in its preparation. One of its greatest recommendations is that it is SOAP in a very pure and concentrated form." "A month's clothes for a family of eight were washed in six hours."—G. Gough, Esq., Calne, Wilts. Patentee: Harper Twelvetrees, Bromley-by-Bow, London.

WHITECHAPEL.—
Good day, M'CARROLL, said a tradesman's wife,
I've walked a mile in coming to your shop;
You're my best friend, upon my life;
'Tis you who makes the price of meat to drop.

The HERALD tells us daily all your prices,
Which the labouring man reads over with great care,
And feels right thankful at this dull crisis
That Phil M'Carroll keeps him from despair.

Now work is low and bread is dear;
My husband little has to do;
Our hard-earned shilling, when brought here,
Is worth as much as others give for two.

The poor man's friend M'Carroll is;
Let every poor man rally round him;
His wife and children, all that's his,
In gratitude should all surround him.

The thousands that he pays to squatters,
His profits with him we all share;
So cheap he feeds our sons and daughters,
While he has all the toil and care.

Long live M'Carroll and the Queen,
For he's the king of butchers here,
In New South Wales there's never been
M'Carroll's equal any year.

Passed the Star of Australia (s.), on the 19th off Curtis Island; also Boomerang (s.), off Breaksea Spit. The Eagle (s.), was sighted off Port Macquarie on the 21st instant.

The P. and O. Co.'s s. Bombay sailed yesterday afternoon with the English mails.

Two barques were signalled to the southward last evening, supposed to be bound for Newcastle.

The barque Ellesmere was loading at Maryborough, for Sydney, on the 16th instant.

We learn from Captain Curphey, that H. M. schooner Pearl, under the command of Captain Jefferies, R.N., who is now engaged in making a survey of the coast for the Admiralty, was passed by the Lady Bowen, steamer, on Friday evening, off Woody Island. The Pearl was then on her way to Keppel Bay, where, doubtless, she has by this time arrived.—Rockhampton Bulletin, July 12.

The following is Captain Budgen's report of his visit to the wreck of the Nightingale:—The cutter Presto left Port Denison on June 18th, at 4 a.m., for the wreck of the schooner Nightingale, on the westernmost island of Sir James Smith's Group, June 20th, at 11 a.m., arrived at the wreck; on landing, found the vessel completely gutted of every article of value, and other articles of little value scattered about the ship in all directions, showing that those who had been there before had done their work well; found the bottom of the hull slightly bilged on each side, false keel gone fore and aft, all the rest of the vessel perfect; she was lying in the same position as if on the stocks. Remained twenty-four hours, all hands on shore looking for fresh water, but found none in sufficient quantity to support five men to be left with the wreck. June 21st, made sail for Pine Islands for the purpose of shipping four casks of water. June 22nd, arrived at Pine Islands, and commenced filling water casks; left again same night, but brought up under Passage Island owing to ebb tide. June 23rd, up anchor, but owing to a sudden change of wind to south-east had to run back to Pine Islands; at 6 a.m. got underway again, with light winds from south-east. June 24th, light winds from same quarter; at 11 a.m. brought up close to shaw's Peak; at 6 p.m. weighed, and at midnight arrived at the wreck. June 25th, landed five men, water, and stores, and left again same afternoon for Port Denison; arrived here on the 27th, at daylight. Captain Budgen is of opinion that the vessel can be got off. He also reports that he passed between Shaw's Peak and the disputed Spitfire Rock, which latter at ebb tide was standing fully ten feet out of water, but at high water was covered.—Port Denison Times, July 2.

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1864.

THE discussion in the House of Commons in reference to the extension of the franchise indicates the direction of the question. Every one must perceive that the enlargement of the franchise is a necessary consequence of the increased comfort and growing intelligence of the people. No wise man will haggle upon trifles, or hesitate to meet a change which, though not without some degree of hazard, nevertheless has the support of experience, and may ward off dangerous revolutions. It is remarkable that the advocates of universal suffrage of former years have become more moderate in their views, while the opponents of any extension are losing ground, and indeed for the most part abandoning in principle their opposition. In France a great reaction has taken place against universal suffrage among all intelligent classes of the people. A mighty risk is always incurred by the operation of this system, whenever the constitution admits the popular vote. Thus no less than forty members are returned of the party in opposition to the system of NAPOLEON, and these are the representatives of the great masses of the people. While, therefore, the despotic element of the French Government has in its earlier stages received the greatest support from universal suffrage—a system which brought to the poll the nominees of prefects and of the priesthood—the same constitution, by leaving a smaller suffrage in the hands of the people of large cities, has restored to the Representative Chamber men who threaten by their popularity and unity to shake to its basis the policy, if not the foundation, of the empire.

The action of universal suffrage in any country where it exists, except when practically shaped and restrained by a superior power, is a veritable danger for Government, and must remain so until the people are educated and their physical condition largely improved. The great duty of British statesmen is to avoid this system, and yet to see where the enlargement may be safe, and to meet it with concessions required by the spirit of the age. This we doubt not will be done in England. Reforms carried in furtherance of political justice in times of comparative repose often strengthen the Constitution instead of weakening its authority.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. GLADSTONE, in his speech upon the subject, took many by surprise. He doubtless passed the line which Ministerial prudence would have drawn; but this has been always his practice, whether from the ardour of his mind, or from that keen calculation by which men often place themselves in the van of a movement by being the first to recognise its existence. Neither side of the House was, however, in a condition to say much in rejoinder. Both at certain periods had had their projects of reform, and had admitted, by the measures they proposed, the abstract justice of those claims which have since become more imperative. At the present moment, however, the absorbing interest of foreign affairs will probably disincline the people for any very keen or continuous discussion of such questions. The practical grievances felt by the people have been largely redressed, and the progress of national wealth has lightened the burdens which once seemed likely to crush the national industry. "How are we to compete with foreigners," was the great cry some years ago, "ground down as we are by taxation?" We have, however, managed this competition, and have issued from it with signal triumph; and the material consequences of reforms which have been made from year to year have abated the distrust of the Legislature, and inspired a conviction that the enlargement of popular power is only to be limited with the increase of popular intelligence. What was safe in 1832 might have been dangerous in 1817. What might be possible in 1865, might have been full of peril in 1832. It is this caution that has rendered changes safe to England which would have proved destructive to continental monarchies, and ended in an internecine war of classes.

When we speak of the admitted necessity of reform in England, the limits of the franchise must be recollected. In England, it seems that not more than one-fiftieth of the working classes possess a vote, and this after all the improvements which have been achieved in their condition. And what is still more important is that not one-tenth part of the constituencies consists of working men. If this be a true statement of the limits of representation, we can hardly wonder that there is a cry for an enlargement, or that measures for that purpose in various forms have been submitted to the Parliament by our most eminent statesmen. The famous saying of Earl RUSSELL—"Rest and be thankful"—has been supposed to imply that this famous leader has reached his limit of reform. He has often, however, like Mr. GLADSTONE, surprised the world by startling movements which have given to the public questions a mighty spring. We do not suppose that when he described the country as invited to repose by its happy circumstances that he intended to stereotype institutions while society is in perpetual change; or that they should not have the adaptation which altered conditions and relations may demand. But the advice he gave was, notwithstanding, sound, and worthy of acceptance. Those who consider what has been effected may well look back as well as forward, and enjoy the satisfaction of that which has been achieved, as well as anticipate the strength for new effort and new success.

When, however, we turn to the fate of countries that have, like our own, so long contemplated the establishment of constitutions and dynasties, and consider the wreck and ruin which have overtaken them—how their constitutions have been destroyed—how the fairest prospects of lasting liberty have been blasted and blighted, we feel less and less confidence in any scheme of government that is not based upon general knowledge and public virtue. We have seen the widest diffusion of political power followed almost instantly by the heaviest pressure of despotic rule, and we have seen a nation which appeared to have carried the theory of popular government to its highest perfection lose, in two or three years, the fruits of its moral and political conquest, and plunge into a war to which nothing perhaps recorded in history will bear a more than doubtful comparison. While petty factions are contending for the spoils of office and flattering the passions of the people, the thoughtful mind seeks a more elevated view, and reflects with awe and sadness how all is liable to be destroyed by ignorance, passion, pride, and injustice.

Many will be reminded, by these new discussions of reform, of the lapse of time. A generation has passed away since Earl RUSSELL introduced his bill—nearly two since he began the discussion of reform. The paroxysm of agitation connected with the Chartist movement never interested the great bulk of the people but as it excited their fears; but the Reform Bill of Earl GREY and Earl RUSSELL roused the passions of the nation to the utmost pitch consistent with the safety of the State, and perhaps beyond it. There were then vast interests whose very existence even seemed to be suspended upon its success, and hopes were inspired of far greater changes than its provisions seemed to imply. All parties were mistaken. The English mind was not altered. The seat of power in some degree changed its centre, but it did not widely diverge. What was lost in one form was recovered in a much better, and the influence of the wealth and intelligence of the country was re-established by its instant and active association with the social improvement of the people, and the frank renunciation of exclusive privileges which had survived their time. We suspect that reforms such as are likely to be adopted by a British Parliament will be far less formidable in their initiation and equally happy in their results.

IN October next, according to our contemporary the Argus, the railway extension from Sandhurst to Echuca will be completed, and the river Murray will be only a few hours easy ride from Melbourne. Realised facts always make more impression upon the public mind than those shadows do which coming events are said to cast before them. When the locomotive that has breathed itself by the run up from Melbourne slakes its thirst in the waters of the Murray—when the commerce of that river and of the Darling is sucked to the inland terminus of the railway—when the streets of Echuca are busy with the trade of an inland emporium, and when the sleepy denizens of Moama are awakened of a morning by the shrill whistle of a Victorian engine that has been earning its breakfast, people will wake up to the commercial hold that Victoria has got over all the southern and western parts of Riverina. The absorbent power of that railway to draw traffic to itself will be felt probably as far to the north-east as Gundagai, and the employment of light steamers between Albury and Echuca will carry down the river all the freight both from the north and the south banks. The river boats of South Australia may contest with Victoria more or less successfully for the trade of the Darling; but in this race Sydney will be nowhere. Two neighbours will be scrambling for the commerce of nearly half our territory, and the metropolis of the colony to which the territory belongs will look helplessly on at the division of the spoil. We may retain the political government of the territory, but we shall do so for the commercial aggrandisement of other colonies. We shall keep the honour and glory, and let the solid pudding go elsewhere. Years hence, when our Western railway is extended to Bathurst, and beyond it across the great salt bush plain to the Darling, Sydney will have as good a chance as any other port of drawing to itself the commerce of at least the northern half of Riverina. But a good deal of patience will have been exhausted before that idea is realised, and meanwhile possession, which is "nine points of the law," will be in the hands of others.

This result is unavoidable, although more energy and foresight on our part might have altered our relative position for the better. The physical geography of the continent is against us. Riverina is naturally more accessible from Melbourne and Adelaide than from Sydney. The South Australians have had nothing to do but to build a few steamboats, and creep up the ready-made river. The Victorians have had to construct a railway of about a hundred miles in length; but though the route is not level, they have had no such formidable difficulties to contend with as the passage of the Blue Mountains involves. Local jealousies, too, have forbidden the concentration of our energies on any one line, and we advance, therefore, towards the interior at only one-third of the pace at which we should go if our progress were all in one line.

But, whatever may be the cause of the existing state of things, and whether or not we have to blame ourselves for our action or inaction in the matter, the Legislature and the Government has to face the fact that, inevitably, for years to come, the large and growing commerce of the greater portion of Riverina will go down the river to Port Adelaide, or down the railway to Melbourne, and every season, therefore, the Border Customs question will become more and more important. It will be remembered that Mr. MARTIN, in explaining how he could jog along for another session without fresh taxes, took credit for the Riverine Customs which he intended to collect. We pointed out at the time that this was an exceedingly contingent source of income—that it would take time to put in force any system for collecting the duties, and that when it was commenced the results were, to some extent, hypothetical. The greater part of the year has passed—we are now drawing towards the close of July—and not a farthing of revenue has come in from that quarter as yet; so that that expected relief to the Treasury will not be realised.

Negotiations are still in progress; but negotiations may crawl on for ever at their present rate, and the Treasury be none the richer. The Government is armed with all the necessary power, and it will have to give to Parliament a satisfactory explanation why the affair is still unsettled.

Meantime, while Victoria is scheming to annex Southern Riverina, the settlers themselves in that locality continue their agitation for separation. That they have had, and continue to have, grounds of complaint we have often admitted, but none that might not be remedied. The Provincial Bill which the Government is said to be maturing may to some extent meet all the objections that have arisen out of a neglect of local works. The other great cause of complaint is the unsettled tenure of the public lands. The question as to the renewal of the pastoral leases is probably that on which the settlers feel most keenly, and about which they are individually most anxious. It is not right that they should be kept in doubt. They ought to have known before now exactly what they had to expect, for uncertainty paralyses their operations. The best way to deal with them would probably be to give annual leases permanently renewable, at a rent to be periodically appraised, reserving full right to the Government to alienate the freehold of the land in any way that may from time to time seem most expedient. This would not only be a sufficiently good tenure, but would be the best they could expect; for they can have no claim to exclusive monopoly, except so long as nobody wants to disturb them. The squatting tenure, being only a temporary and preliminary appropriation of the land, must be always kept flexible enough to yield to the pressure of a demand for freeholds.

If Provincial Government were established, and the renewal of the leases settled in the way indicated, the Riverine squatters would have no adequate grievances to present to the notice of the SECRETARY OF STATE. Separation, which might be granted if a good cause were shown, would be inexcusable. For the petitioners could not complain that they had no powers of self-government; and they could not complain if they had the best leasehold tenure compatible with the requirements of freehold purchasers; and they could not complain that they were compelled to pay a fair rent for their runs. It is important, in making out a good case in our negotiations with Victoria, that we should do justice to the occupants of Riverina, or otherwise we have enemies on all hands. To be thwarted alike by unwilling subjects and by active foes will make our position indefensible. And on financial grounds it is very expedient that we should not neglect any available revenue from waste lands. The better the tenure that is granted, the better the rent that will be freely given. Threatened as we are with fresh taxation, it is doubly expedient that we should fully develop all existing sources of income. No one would wish to see the runs of the colony rack-rented, or any unfair extortion applied to the pastoral leaseholders. But there is no injustice in requiring from them a rent which is a fair equivalent for the use of the public property they enjoy, while there is an injustice to the rest of the public in not requiring it.

THE REVENUE.

THE following is an abstract of the gross produce of the revenue of New South Wales in the undermentioned periods, ended June 30, 1864, compared with the corresponding periods of the preceding year:—

No. 1.—TOTAL REVENUE PROPER.

	1862-63.	1863-64.	Decrease.
September	£416,916	£384,503	£32,413
December	428,884	361,077	64,807
March	337,039	290,305	46,734
June	450,978	337,512	113,466
The Year	£1,630,817	£1,373,397	£257,420

Here are very serious defalcations. On the whole twelvemonth there is a falling-off in the revenue proper of more than a quarter of a million, at the rate of nearly 16 per cent.; on the past quarter, as compared with the corresponding period of last year, the decrease is £113,466, or at the high rate of 25 per cent.

With the exception of sugar, which is a new head, there is decrease in the quarter under every specified head except the Mint, the Post Office, railways, and the electric telegraph. The same remark applies to the year with the exception of the Mint.

The produce of the Customs has gone down £93,859 in the quarter, £172,699 in the year; respectively 41 and 26 per cent.

The fall in the gold revenue is £2303 in the quarter, £29,271 in the year, the one 24, the other 44 per cent.

The Mint receipts have advanced in the quarter £2810, or 52 per cent., but have slightly receded in the year.

The Post Office, railways, and electric telegraphs, show well for both periods. The increase in receipts for the Post Office is 16 per cent. for the quarter, but for the year scarcely 6 per cent. The increase in the returns for railways is 12 per cent for the quarter, 27 per cent. for the year.

The detailed comparison of the land revenue stands as under.

In the sums realised by the land sales there is here shown a decrease for the quarter of £6864, and of £28,548 for the year; respectively 16 and 15 per cent.

On the whole, the comparative state of the public income is more unfavourable than has been witnessed for many years.

FLOODS RELIEF FUND.—A meeting of the working committee of the Floods Relief Fund was held yesterday afternoon; the Mayor of Sydney in the chair. Some applications for relief on behalf of the residents in the Hinton district were directed to be forwarded to the relief committee at Morpeth. Some wheat, potatoes, and lucerne seed were voted for the Camden district; but no votes of money were made. Several applications for relief were postponed to the next meeting.

VOLUNTEER ARTILLERY BALL.—It is understood that the annual ball of the No. 2 Battery is likely to be a splendid affair. It may be remembered that a similar entertainment given by this battery last year went off with great éclat. Those who desire to secure cards would do well to bear in mind that Tuesday is the last day of issue.

BURTON'S CIRCUS.—The last day performance at the circus will take place this afternoon, under the patronage and presence of his Excellency the Governor-in-chief, at half-past two o'clock; and in the evening Mr. Bartine will take a benefit, when, in addition to his evolutions on the corde volants, and the "Antipodean feat," he will also appear as an equestrian. This performance will conclude Mr. Burton's term at the Victoria Theatre, when he intends taking a tour through the country districts.

THE BENEFIT OF MR. ROGERS.—This evening, the performances at the Prince of Wales are for the benefit of Mr. G. H. Rogers, who has been so long connected with the colonial stage; and universally admitted to be an excellent artist in that forte which has established the name of Farren in London. The pieces selected for the occasion are the drama of the Ticket-of-Leave Man, and the farce of Little Toddlekins.

LECTURE.—Last Wednesday, evening the lecture on "Love" was delivered by Mr. Henry Kendall, in St. Peter's schoolroom, Cook's River. The audience consisted chiefly of the members of the leading families in the neighbourhood—the majority, of course, being ladies. After the lecturer, in an eloquent and earnest prelection, had spoken of the necessity of Love for the attainment of knowledge and the gain of happiness, he proceeded to speak of the several conditions of that which he called "a bright truth set against dark truths." The different portions of the discourse were clearly and forcibly rendered—the part referring to "love between the sexes" drawing forth especial applause. At the conclusion of this interesting lecture the Rev. George King, who presided on the occasion, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Kendall, a vote seconded and carried amidst much acclamation.—Communicated.

CORONER'S INQUEST.—Yesterday, the City Coroner held an inquest in Darlinghurst gaol, on view of the body of a prisoner named Sarah Mountain, who died there on Wednesday evening. Deceased was admitted into the gaol on the 1st of May last, to undergo a sentence of three months' imprisonment for drunkenness and vagrancy. She was ill at the time. Dr. West's evidence showed that deceased's death had resulted from the decay of nature. She had been properly treated, and had received medical comforts. Jury's verdict: "Deceased, aged over ninety years, died from natural causes."

SNOW IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT.—During the last few days we have had some very heavy falls of snow. On Sunday last the road between Orange and Cadiangullong for several miles on the table land was completely blocked up, the snow being upwards of a foot deep, and travellers from one place to the other, not acquainted with the road, found great difficulty in reaching their destination.—Orange Guardian of Wednesday.

HOME VISITING SOCIETY.

THE annual meeting of this society was held last evening at the Schoolroom, Castlereagh-street. The meeting was only very thinly attended. Amongst those present were Sir Alfred Stephen, the Mayor of Sydney, and Mr. J. B. Darvall, M.L.A. The chair was taken by his Excellency Sir John Young.

THE CHAIRMAN, on taking the chair, said that they were met to-night for the purpose of furthering by their presence and advocacy the Home Visiting and Relief Society. The report contained so full and clear an account of what had been done, and what was hoped to be done, that he would not attempt to enter upon that point lest he should weaken the effect of the statements it contained; but he thought it right to express his conviction that this society put forward well-founded claims for general notice and support, and that the more widely the knowledge of it was spread the greater would be the contributions for its maintenance and extension. He was aware that an assertion of this kind would be regarded merely as the expression of an individual opinion, unless it were supported by reasons. Therefore, without going very fully into the subject, he would adduce one or two reasons in support of the view he took. He would say nothing with regard to the class the society contemplated relieving, he would leave that to others who would address them; but there was nothing that so chilled benevolence and arrested the outstretched hand of charity as the dread of imposture. Against this the society opposed the most effectual safeguard. In another point of view, those charitably inclined had too often not the time to make the necessary inquiries. That there were many so inclined they were well aware, and this meeting, though not numerous, represented a large amount of charitable feeling in this city. That feeling had been manifested on many occasions, and never more strongly than in the recent collections for the relief of sufferers by the floods. If he were rightly informed, the subscriptions were so munificent that the amount raised had been found to be amply sufficient to meet all the requirements of the sufferers in all parts of the country. But many difficulties stood in the way of those who were charitably inclined—a want of time or other difficulties—such as the sex of the person or the irksomeness of entering upon an investigation. In this position this society offered its aid and agency, so that these persons need be under no apprehension that they were doing more harm than good, as they would be if they gave indiscriminately. Indiscriminate alms had the effect but too often of inducing persons to put on squalid garments, and make semblance of poverty in order to get money from the unwary. By availing themselves of the means possessed by this society, and making it the medium of relief, these persons were guarded against imposture, relieved actual distress, and held out encouragement to honest exertion and laudable industry. That this was the effect they would find when the report was read, for they would hear of instances of persons who not very long ago were recipients of aid from the society, and who, by the relief afforded to them, by their own exertions and by the blessing of God, had retrieved their position, rescued themselves from distress, and were now contributors to the relief of others.

The Secretary (Mr. G. F. Wise) announced that he had received letters from the Dean of Sydney, the Rev. Canon Allwood, Mr. Justice Wise, Sir W. Manning, the Rev. Dr. Fullerton, Dr. Douglass, and Mr. Murnin, apologising for their absence.

The Secretary then read the following report:—

REPORT

The committee of the Home Visiting and Relief Society have much pleasure in submitting to the public their second annual report.

This society was formed for the purpose of affording relief to those who come under the denomination of the "educated class," who have known "better days," and who, from various causes, have needed some assistance; either to enable them to ward off impending ruin, or to provide the means of obtaining some employment, whereby to gain their own subsistence.

It may be well to remind the public that, before relief of any kind is afforded, a member of the committee visits each applicant "at home," and makes himself acquainted with the nature of the case; he is thus better able to form an opinion and report to the committee the best mode of rendering such pecuniary assistance as may be required. The operations of the society are limited to Sydney and its immediate suburbs.

It is satisfactory to know that, with the small means the society has had at its disposal, much good has been accomplished.

During the present year there have been 107 applications for relief, amongst whom seventeen were considered ineligible, of the remaining ninety, twenty-three applicants have been relieved by donations to the extent of £99; and to sixty-seven individuals loans of money of from £1 to £20 each, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of £439 10s. have been advanced.

Even should a large proportion of these loans, from various causes, never be repaid, there is considerable satisfaction to be derived from knowing that the assistance afforded, while it has been of very great service to the recipients, has been administered in such a manner as to spare their feelings, while the prospect of being permitted in the future to repay the debt, at some future time, takes somewhat from the humiliation which generally accompanies the acceptance of mere donations.

Your committee have the gratifying statement to make, that during the past year, no less than sixty-two such repayments have been made by twenty-five individuals, amounting to £99 3s., thus proving the value of the temporary assistance rendered, and the spirit of independence fostered by the society.

In addition to assistance by loans of money, sixteen individuals have, during the past year, through the exertions of the committee, obtained remunerative employment, varying from £40 to £150 per annum. Several who have received pecuniary assistance have repaid the same lent, and three of these have subsequently acknowledged the benefits they have received, by becoming annual subscribers to the funds of the society.

The usefulness of the "Home Visiting and Relief Society," and the large amount of good accomplished, even with limited means, is so obviously set forth in the memorandum of the society's operations; that the publication of this report will doubtless enlist, as subscribers, many who would wish to have their charity usefully and practically applied.

It is, however, a matter of regret that the society should not have been more liberally supported, as the want of funds has considerably crippled the efforts of your committee, and prevented them from enlarging their sphere of action, while the balance in the bank to the credit of the society having, on a recent occasion, been reported to the committee to have been only £58 12s. 9d.

That the operations of the society may be extended as much as possible, the committee desire to be understood that they are at all times ready and willing to investigate all cases of distress recommended to their notice, whether such recommendation emanate from subscribers or non-subscribers.

In conclusion, your committee would gratefully acknowledge the blessing of God, which has, in so many instances, signally attended their past efforts, and they rely that their future exertions in behalf of those among the "educated classes" who need assistance from this society, will meet with increased support.

The financial statement was read, from which it appeared that the revenue of the society for the past year amounted to £728 12s. 10d., consisting of balance from previous year £194 1s. 2d.; donations and subscriptions, £425 17s. 6d.; interest, £9 9s. 2d.; refund of loans, £99 5s. Amongst the items of expenditure were loans, £439 10s.; grants, £59.

SIR ALFRED STEPHEN moved the first resolution, "That the report now read be adopted, and, with the financial statement, be printed and circulated." Notwithstanding the smallness of the meeting, he had sanguine hopes that the result would be an increase of the society's funds. It was desirable that it should be so, for it was clear that unless there was a considerable accession to its funds, the operations of this valuable society must be greatly curtailed. He conceived that the public at large would desire to support this society, so soon as they were told, as was the fact, that there was a large amount of wide-spread distress existing amongst the class for whose relief this society was established. They were a class of persons whose wants were not obtruded upon the public. Their feelings, habits, and connections all forbad any effort of the kind. They were not persons who could bring themselves to ask for charity. On the contrary, they shrunk from observation, they applied for relief even in secret. There were many of them who had suffered distress rather than have their names disclosed to the committee even. There were many such instances. There were some who had actually received relief, and who, on learning that their names were necessarily known to the committee, had given up the relief and retired altogether from observation. Such was the shrinking nature of the distress amongst this class. Others, again, of more education even than those he had alluded to, were impostors. Against these the society offered a material guarantee, insuring to the charitably disposed that their gifts should be well bestowed, and that none but those really in distress should profit by them. Let them consider that during the past year no less than a hundred cases had been relieved. This was, no doubt, only a very small portion of those who had once seen better days, known happier times, and but a little time ago themselves contributed to the relief of others, and were now themselves in want. Yet though small the number, what a large amount of good had been done by the division of the small fund of the society amongst these hundred persons. And the society did good, not merely by giving money, though many cases of pecuniary distress of course rendered necessary the application of money. But, in addition to this, a greater amount of aid was given by friendly advice and counsel, and by the introduction of the persons to some new line of life. Many instances in which relief had been afforded in this way were referred to in the report. It had been said that we were a charitable community, and he believed we were, to a large extent. The thinness of this meeting was no real indication of the extent of feeling on this subject. He knew it was much more pleasant to say things that were delightful to the ear, and at all times the voice of praise was more agreeable than that of the plainer truth. Let us not suppose, then, that we were the most charitable community in the world. He did not say we were deficient as a community, but many of us individually were lamentably deficient. He could point to some instances in which the charitable contributions of individuals were in inverse proportion to their means. This ought not to be. It ought to be the desire and the pleasure of all to give largely, not asking themselves how much or how little they should give, in order to be like others, but how much they could afford to give,—how much pleasure they could purchase for themselves by giving relief to others. We were not the only charitable community, nor were we the most charitable. If they turned over the list of charities maintained in London they would find that there were no less than 700 of them, for the support of which an amount was raised that was really something enormous, striking one as something miraculous that persons could exhibit so much expenditure in wealth and luxury, and yet at the same time lay out such large sums in charity. We could not exceed, but we might imitate, the charity that was exhibited in the mother country. He had only one more observation to make, and that was that this society was not founded on the idea of a subscription of the better classes to assist those in their own class, but on that of a general subscription from all to aid the wants of a particular class, in the same way that all were appealed to for the assistance of other classes.

The Rev. Dr. STEEL seconded the resolution. This was not an association that did its work publicly, for it laboured silently and secretly, but still most effectively; and by giving their aid in this way, they sought to keep up the self-respect of those who were its recipients. There was always something degrading when people were brought together in crowds to get their dole of charity at the workhouse; and all those who had desired to reform the national feeling had said that public charity should be administered at the homes of those who required it, and not before all the world. It had been universally observed in England that where people were brought together to receive their dole of charity, there was always this degrading influence at work; and to prevent this, societies have been established in recent years for the purpose of giving home relief, of raising the self-respect of the people, and of associating all classes with each other for the general welfare. One of these societies, and the beneficial mode of its working, had been recently very lucidly alluded to by an English correspondent of the Herald on the social condition of England. There was a difficulty at first in carrying out the objects of the society, but now there were many noblemen, many sons of merchants and bankers, who were engaged in these domiciliary visits, and there were no less than seventy-seven officers in the Guards who were so engaged. Even amongst the humblest there was a sense of delicacy at receiving charity, and this feeling was all the stronger in persons of education and position, and this society consequently seemed to him to exactly meet their case, by giving the relief required in the mode required, and without in any way detracting from the self-respect of the recipients. Amongst such persons there was always an attempt to keep up appearances, and they would fancy themselves lowered in the eyes of their neighbours were it known that they received charity. This feeling of independence the society endeavoured to keep up, by helping these persons over their difficulties in as delicate a manner as possible. He believed that a fair case had been shewn for the necessity for such a society, and that it had very strong claims on the sympathy and consideration of the intelligent and benevolent.

The resolution was put, and carried.

MR. J. B. DARVALL said he was by no means discouraged by the limited audience before him to-night; he relied upon the goodness of the cause they were assembled to advocate, the influence those present would exert upon those out of doors, and the general feeling of benevolence in this city, which had never failed in any great degree to relieve the distress brought into notice. He hoped that we might long remain free from poor-laws, but he thought that if all the burden of meting out charity to the country was to be thrown upon a comparatively small band of willing and benevolent-hearted men in and about Sydney, whilst the mass of the vast property of the country contributed little or nothing for that purpose, the selfishness of those who withheld what might be deemed their fair contributions to the relief of distress should receive some compulsion, so that the burden might be more equally divided. It was very grievous to see persons having enormous incomes contributing nothing to the distresses we had to relieve, and it was doubly hard that the claims of poverty should be ignored at the doors of so many in the colony, leaving the same circle of good people to be called upon time after time to bear all the burden of providing means of relief. He hoped, however, that, although there were few here to-night, this would not discourage the promoters and supporters of the institution. Many of the best and most successful works had been carried through by a few earnest and determined people, and it must be considered that they were not now asking charity for a particular class from a particular class, but appealing to benevolence on the common platform of humanity, not with a view to separating a particular class for relief which would be denied to others equally entitled to it; but whilst relieving sufferers by floods and cotton spinners, it must be admitted by all with generous sympathies and kind hearts, that those for whom a demand was urged by the friends of this institution were peculiarly entitled to regard. Owing to what transpired in the mother country, unfortunately for us ship after ship brought here those whose friends, although perhaps well able to bear the burden themselves, had transferred the duty of extending a charitable and helping hand towards them to the people of this colony. Commonly unaccustomed to the dignity of labour, this class of persons were generally almost helpless when they arrived. Men of character and education, but not trained to any useful practical avocation—they, perhaps, with wives and children depending upon them, and no relatives in the country to afford them assistance, found at once that difficulties surrounded them, and that destitution would quickly overtake them. Such a man, in asking for employment, might promise to do all he could, but he would be asked if he could work. We wanted few middle men here, and he might soon see his goods gradually going away from his possession until he reached actual starvation, and that through no fault of his own, but because he had come to a country that had little to offer to poor gentlemen, and because he brought to it nothing but character and education. As a wealthy community, it was our duty to succour distress in whatever shape we find it. The labourer was relieved immediately upon his obtaining employment, but it was different with the class of men to whom he referred. Here was a society willing to perform all the labour, and accept the duty of affording a relief to indigent persons of character and education, and the public were left the grateful task of contributing according to individual means. To them all thanks were due. He would then ask his hearers to make a distinction between mere emotional compassion, which might expend itself on a sigh or an expression of regret or sorrow, and real practical charity; to have regard to the motive of compassion, the doing of good by contributing according to their means. Let us consider for what purposes these means were placed in our hands, whose agents we were in using them, and to what end feelings of benevolence and kind hearts were given us. If the poor must always be with us, and we had kind hearts and charitable impulses, our best feelings could be gratified whilst we did service to our Creator. The resolution he had to move was as follows:—"That this meeting, having heard with much satisfaction the report for the past year, desires to express its opinion that the Home Visiting and Relief Society is well deserving of continued and increased support, and earnestly invites liberal contributions from the public."

The Rev. DEAN O'CONNELL had long since been of the opinion expressed by the Chief Justice—that a well-regulated and benevolent heart never required stimulus in the way of orations to make men come forward with assistance whenever there was a call for charity. He rose to support the resolution, and called upon his hearers to give their help to the institution—doing so in the name of Him who being rich became poor, that He might enrich many, and who left this saying, "Men shall know that ye are my disciples as ye love one another." There was, however, another reason why we should support this society. To-day we might possess wealth and have all the comforts of life, but by what was called good fortune, but what was rather the design of Providence, to-morrow we might be in the same position as those whose relief was the object of this society. Let us consider what—if we were in that position—we should wish our brethren to do unto us; and let us now do it for others who are poor, and who, from early associations, by reason of good education, and being brought up delicately, were ashamed to push themselves forward before the public to ask for relief. These were being relieved by this society—those who visited them in their homes, and who knew best how by speaking words of comfort to assuage in some degree the distress and cravings of a hungry family. The objects this society had in view had for the last two years been carried out by ladies, who had been well educated and who devoted their entire lives to such work. He referred to the Sisters of Charity, to the House of the Good Shepherd, and to the Magdalen Asylum. The ladies of these institutions knew how to do a kind thing most kindly, and sought out the homes not only of the poor and indigent but those of respectable and educated people in distress. The smallness of the meeting was no indication that charity was not a virtue much practised in Sydney. He hoped the friends present would use all possible diligence in bringing subscribers to the funds of the institution, so that the gentlemen entrusted with the work might be enabled to distribute a larger amount, and thus do good on a more extended scale.

The resolution was put, and passed unanimously.

THE MAYOR OF SYDNEY moved the following resolution:—"That the following gentlemen be the officers of the society and committee for the ensuing year, viz., Patron—His Excellency the Right Honorable Sir John Young, Bart., K.C.B.; President—His Honor Sir Alfred Stephen, Chief Justice; Committee—Rev. Canon Allwood; G. Wigram Allen, Esq.; Edward Allan, Esq.; Dr. Bland, Dr. Charles, James Fairfax, Esq.; Rev. Dr. Fullerton, Captain J. H. Goodlet, Alexander Gordon, Esq.; J. V. Gorman, Esq.; Henry Lunsdaine, Esq.; M. E. Murnin, Esq.; Hon. Sir W. M. Manning, Venerable Archdeacon M'Encroe, Mr. Justice Milford, Dr. Nield, John Richardson, Esq.; Christopher Rolleston, Esq.; Matthew H. Stephen, Esq.; Mr. Justice Wise. Treasurer—G. K. Ingelow, Esq., Oriental Bank. Honorary Medical Attendant—Dr. Fortescue. Honorary Secretaries—H. G. Douglass, Esq., George F. Wise, Esq.

Dr. NEILD seconded the resolution with great pleasure, from having had the honour of being on the committee, and of having observed the workings of the institution during the past year. No gentleman who had yet spoken had dwelt in any degree of detail upon any individual case, and it would indeed be out of the question to do so, as it would be prejudicial to the operations of the society. Nevertheless he should be glad to be allowed to bear general testimony to the great value of the institution, to the extreme usefulness of its operations, and to the large amount of happiness and rescue from poverty and almost from ruin which it had been the means of bringing about.

The resolution was then put and carried.

DR. BLAND proposed a vote of thanks to his Excellency for presiding, and to the other gentlemen who had taken part in the proceedings.

MR. DARVALL had much pleasure in seconding the motion, and remarked on the invariable kindness which his Excellency always displayed in presenting himself wherever there was a good cause to be advocated, to encourage it by his presence, to assist it by his good counsel, and to give it all that aid which he alone could give.

The audience having testified their assent to the motion by rising,

THE CHIEF JUSTICE said he felt sure that no vote of thanks that the audience could award his Excellency could please him so much as the satisfaction he derived from knowing that his presence was more likely to do good to the society than the presence of any other man.

HIS EXCELLENCY, in acknowledging the vote of thanks, said he hoped the audience would all go forth as collectors in aid of the funds of the society, and as missionaries to preach and to promote its objects.

The meeting then broke up.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE Messrs. Spence, Asher, Peden, Argent, and Oatley.

Of twenty prisoners brought before the Court, six were discharged and three were remanded.

Francis Whitford, 16, James Walker, 17, James Crichton, 16, Jonathan Jones, 25, Frederick Dawson, 16, John Appleton, 16, James Burgon, 18, and Thomas Mackay, 19, were charged with vagrancy. Sergeant Lee deposed that, between one and two o'clock this morning, he proceeded to the Hunter River New Steam Navigation Company's Wharf, and there found lying on hay, the seven prisoners first above-named; they belong to a class known as the Forty Thieves and have no visible means of support. Sergeant Goldrick deposed that about two o'clock this morning, being in King-street, he saw a number of boys about a man whom they were either assaulting or trying to rob, for he cried out for the police; on his (Goldrick's) approach the boys ran away, but he followed and apprehended Mackey, who was one of them. James Walker was sentenced to be imprisoned fourteen days; Francis Whitford, two months; Crichton, Jones, Dawson, Burgon, and Mackey, three months. Appleton was discharged. Catherine Richards, an old vagrant, having been found drunk, was sentenced to be imprisoned three weeks as an idle and disorderly person; and Francis Thompson, who for some time past has been about once a-week—and sometimes more than once in the course of a week—convicted and punished for riotous and drunk, was, for a similar offence, sentenced to be imprisoned three days.

John Smith was summarily convicted for having stolen a coat, the property of James Doyle, and was sentenced to be imprisoned one month.

Jane Thompson, apprehended for drunkenness on the way to the lock-up, let fall a night-dress; she was called upon to show that she became honestly possessed of it; her allegation that the garment is her own properly did not satisfy their worships, and she was sentenced to be imprisoned one month.

On the summons paper were ten cases, two of which were postponed, and one was struck out for want of power. In Rawlinson v. Chirard, for neglecting to obey an order of Court for maintenance of his wife, the sum of £3 6s. 8d., being now due and unpaid, it was ordered to be imprisoned three months unless the money be sooner paid. In Stephenson v. Elliott, an order was taken by consent for the payment of 5s. weekly for the support of an illegitimate child of which defendant acknowledged the paternity. Mansfield v. Davis was an undefended sale for wages alleged to be due, and an order was made for payment with costs. Anthony Daly was found guilty of a breach of the Masters and Servants Act in refusing to obey a lawful command by J. H. Maddock, his master, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of 10s. George Hopgood, publican was fined 1£., for permitting prostitutes to assemble and remain in his public-house. Michael Shorthill was fined 5s. for being at an illegal distance from his omnibus, and John Graham was fined 2s. 6d. for allowing a cow to stray in a public place.

WATER POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE the Water Police Magistrates, with Mr. J. Kerr, Mr. W. Day, Mr. E. J. C. North, Mr. G. Raine.

William Lewis, 17, pleaded guilty to a charge of using obscene language in Crown-street, and was fined £2; in default of payment to be imprisoned fourteen days. Judith Sullivan, for a similar offence in Dowling-street, was fined 10s., with the alternative of forty-eight hours' imprisonment. John Finn, 15, brought up on a like charge, was fined 40s., or fourteen days in gaol.

Henry Bridges, contractor, Paddington, was brought before the Court by detective Campbin, on an endorsed warrant from Melbourne, charged with having whilst bailee of certain moneys of William Henry Warren, (£40,) feloniously converted the same to his use, and with having stolen, taken, and carried away the same. Prisoner was remanded for further evidence until Monday.

Robert Mortimer, alias Robert Wood, 29, described as a surgeon, was apprehended on a charge of obtaining from John Wise, news agent &c., William-street, the sum of five shillings, under false pretence, on a fictitious cheque. When arrested, prisoner said he would not have done it but for the distress of his wife, and on his person were found two blank cheques similar to the one he was charged with using. John Wise stated that, on the night of the 19th instant, prisoner came into his parlour and said "will you oblige me with a few shillings; this is a perfectly good cheque, signed by Mr. Rolin, the solicitor, in King-street; but the name of Mr. Mortimer on it is not mine, but that of a friend of mine for whom I have cashed it; will you oblige me with a few shillings, and I will leave the cheque with you and return you the money in the morning." Wise remarked that both he (prisoner) and Mr. Rolin were strangers to him, and prisoner replied, "I assure you it is a perfectly good cheque." Seeing that prisoner appeared to be a respectable man Wise requested his wife to give him five shillings; but as she hesitated Wise gave him two half-crowns out of his own pocket. Prisoner then folded the cheque and, placing it under a clock on the mantelpiece, left the house. On subsequently examining the cheque it was found that no bank was mentioned. Wise followed prisoner, whom he found in the shop of Mr. Bazan, chemist, William-street, and having charged him with having obtained the five shillings under false pretences, said he would give him into custody. Prisoner attempted to get away, but with Mr. Bazan's assistance was detained. The cheque is dated July 19th, 1864, is signed T. B. Rolin, is for £3 5s. payable to Mr. Mortimer. Thomas Bardy Rolin, solicitor, denied that the signature was his, and knew nothing about the cheque. Prisoner had called upon him three times, but otherwise was a perfect stranger to him. In cross-examination by prisoner, witness said prisoner had his (Rolin's) signature set to a document appealing for assistance from the public on prisoner's behalf. Prisoner, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions.

Joseph Cole, chief officer of the ship Bengal, was charged with assaulting, on the 17th instant, John Walter, a seaman of that ship, whose person presented several marks of violence. Complainant stated that defendant came to his berth, and, asking him why he was not on watch, when an altercation took place, resulting in defendant striking him while he was in his berth, and subsequently on deck. When knocked down on deck he fell against a chain, since which he had not been able to hold his head up or do any work. William Richard Johns, the second officer, who stated that he was present when defendant went to complainant, deposed that defendant merely shook him, but added that defendant "never laid hands on him." The case was dismissed.

Mark Connelly, omnibus driver, for furious driving, was fined 5s., with costs. William M'Cauley, for allowing music in his licensed public-house without magistrate's permission was fined 1£., with costs; and William John Wells, publican, for keeping house open for sale of liquors after twelve o'clock at night was fined 1£., with costs.

Patrick Riley was fined 10s., with costs, for allowing the contents of his water-closet to overflow, and Jane Nolan, was fined 1£., with costs, for neglecting to keep her premises clean.

Charles Fulse, seaman, of the ship Kate Swanton, convicted of wilful disobedience of lawful commands, was sentenced to fourteen days' hard labour in gaol.

THE INFLUENCE OF FOOD ON MIND AND BODY.

"Hear me with patience,
While thy mind I free,
From thy false notions."
—DAVDEN'S PERSIUS.

THE influence that both the quantity and quality of food exercises over our mental and corporeal faculties, is but little thought of by the general mass of mankind, but that such is nevertheless a fact will not, I think, be doubted, and as Prior says in "Alma," in the discussion on the location of the mind.

"The qualms or raptures of your blood
Rise in proportion to your food;
And if you would improve your thought,
You must be fed as well as taught;
Your stomach makes your fabric roll,
Just as the bias rules the bowl."

Some may think this teaching implies a degradation of mind, but the objection is erroneous, for it is impossible to dissociate the operations of the mind from those of the stomach; a certain parallelism between digestion and mental action which cannot be overlooked.

The nobility of the mind is not depreciated by elevating the dignity of the stomach; by raising the one, we give stability to the other, for often the most exalted mind is at the mercy of a recalcitrant stomach, or a crude meal.

Some of the ancients were particularly stimulated to deeds of valour in consequence of particular descriptions of food, especially the "black broth of war" of the Spartans, which tended to develop the passions of the men, and caused a Sybarite, who partook of it, to exclaim, "Now do I perceive how it is that Spartan soldiers encountered death so joyfully." Many instances I could relate of the gastronomical penchants of the classic Greeks, and how their delicious messes of gravid sows trampled to death, and stews of eggs, cheese, and garlic, stimulated their energies in warfare, and the various arts and sciences. I will paradise an old saying "Tell me what you eat, and I will tell you who you are;" and this has been taken up by many physiologists, and even in several works of travellers, poets, and novelists, the influence of food on the intellect is often spoken of. Dr. Lambe argues that the disposition of men, as well as of the inferior animals is greatly influenced by the nature of their food, and warmly advocates the exclusive use of vegetable food by man, as the best material means of making him not only more mild and humane, but even more intellectual.

The general doctrine taught by all physiologists is that man is by nature an omniverous animal; and the celebrated Carpenter affirms that the greatest intellectual vigour is to be found with those who live on a mixed diet of animal and vegetable food.

There cannot be much doubt of the truth of the following dogmas:—That, while there is life, mind and body are inseparably connected; that the body acts on the mind, and vice versa; that impairment of the general health affects the mental powers; that those animals which live on animal or vegetable diet owe their dispositions to the particular food they use; that this is most striking in the horse and dog in confinement; and that the want of ordinary food is capable of affecting the temper and dispositions of living beings.

But to glance at our earliest food.—It is asserted by many authors that the dispositions of infants are greatly influenced by the nature and character of their wet-nurses; and as diseases are directly traceable to the breast-milk, so are also their mental inclinations and temperaments. This Dr. Routh maintains in an article in the Lancet, "On the selection of wet-nurses from among fallen women," that if a nurse of confirmed vicious and passionate habits suckles a child, that child is in danger of having its own morality tainted likewise.

In this matter the ancients were very unanimous, and in a work on the "Faculty and Uses of Milk," Caesar Baricellus says, "by reason of the received nutriment, children will be affected by the natures of their parents, and will partake of an inclination to the faults and virtues of their wet-nurses."

It is said of Nero, the Roman Emperor and tyrant, that he was suckled by a most cruel nurse, and hence his barbarities and crimes are accounted for, though his parents were most benevolent people; and in like manner of Romulus, whose nurse was a she-wolf, and who, as history describes, was most cruel, passionate, strong, and impatient of discomfort. Cyrus was suckled by a dog; Telephus, the son of Hercules, by a goat; Pellis by a mare, and Alexander, son of Priam, by a fox; and these are instances furnished by the ancients as examples of the peculiarities of the natures of their nurses.

But leaving the mythology of the heathen, we find in our own times often frequent illustrations of a physiological truth when we witness the dreadful effects of sudden mental emotions in women affecting the children suckled by them, such as diarrhœa, convulsions, wasting, and even death.

Dr. Carpenter, in his work on Physiology, p. 981, gives two cases where the effects produced were more gradual, but not less fatal. Dr. Ferris, in his treatise on Milk, published as long back as 1785, after alluding to sudden emotions in women, causing the death of infants, says—"Nor are these accidental circumstances in nursing-women the only sources of disorder in their little and innocent charges, for they often derive from the breast the seeds of the worst disorders, and carry with them through life the direful effects of the depraved and vicious habits of those who nursed them."—Nerdig was so strenuous an advocate for this opinion, that he contended that those infants which are nourished at the breast of a stranger for the most part become degenerate—that they derive their constitution from the nourishment which they take from her breast, and, through that medium, their disposition from her temper of mind.

Professor Moleschott, of Zurich, in an excellent work, which has been well reviewed, the influence of food on the intellect is dwelt upon at great length.

This great philosopher says, that it is a well known fact that change of food has transformed the wild cat into the most quiet and domesticated of animals; from being a carniverous animal, with short intestines, it now takes a mixed diet, is transformed into another being, and, by a long intestinal canal is enabled to digest vegetable food, which in its natural state it never would touch. Food then makes the most rapacious and perfidious animals in the world inmates with man, agreeing and being pleased with children, and changes alike their habits and dispositions. Tribes of men, in like manner, are affected according to the different kinds of aliment of which they partake, and they become either ardent or phlegmatic, strong or feeble, courageous or cowardly, thoughtful or intelligent. Physiology teaches us that our food is transformed into blood—blood into nerve and muscle, bone and brain—consequently, the ardour of the heart, the strength of our muscular system, the firmness and solidity of our bones, and the activity of our brain and our mental faculties must be dependent on the composition of our food. There is no doubt that the instinctive or mental manifestations, as well as the physical or brute force, will be materially affected by the quality and quantity of food taken by different animals.

The pig, if fed solely on animal food, will become ferocious, quite different to its state when vegetable diet is alone given; and game cocks are remarkable for their ferocity when fed entirely on chopped meat. In the anatomical department of the University of Giessen, a bear got exceedingly docile while fed exclusively on bread, but when his diet was changed to meat, he became prone to bite, and was even dangerous to his keeper. It is well known that hounds kept for hunting wild and ferocious animals are fed entirely on raw beef, for the purpose of greatly increasing their own ferocity and powers of endurance; and it is said that many graminivorous birds during the breeding season become carnivorous. In Scripture we find that, in speaking with reference to the millennial age, when peace and innocence shall prevail throughout the creation, the lion is said to eat grass as the ox—implying that with the quality of the food so the external manifestations are influenced.

This is true of nations as well, for the herbivorous Hindoos possess but little of the strength and courage of the carnivorous Mussulmans; but even among the carnivorous nations this holds good, if we compare the treacherous and cowardly Spaniard with the bold courageous Saxon; the savage North American Indian with the lethargic South American. Even in Great Britain and Ireland see what contrasts we have in the warm-hearted, hospitable, but impetuous Irishman; the firm, honest, Englishman, and the cool calculating Scotchman; and with these also contrast the Frenchmen, Russians, and Germans, and see what distinctive characters each possess, and how far their different modes of living influence each.

The celebrated Liebeg has pointed out the peculiarity of different kinds of food upon the individuals of the same nation, and says that three men, one of whom has had a full meal of beef and bread, the second of cheese and salt fish, and the third of potatoes, regard a difficulty which presents itself from very different points of view.

Climate also will affect the manifestions of character, as, for instance, the inhabitants of a warm climate are less energetic and robust than those of a colder or more temperate region. The English workmen and navvies who worked on the French lines of railway, and who continued to live as they had done, or were accustomed to in England, did more work, and were much more enduring than the French labourers, who lived after their own fashion on sour wine, fruit, vegetables, and pain bis, while the English enjoyed their good beef, bread, and beer. There is much required with food in the way of cooking, and it is said that crudity of food and thought are interdependent, and Captain Lickfinger was a much more profound philosopher than most people have thought. This subject, however, I will continue in a short time.

MACLEAY RIVER.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

18TH JULY.—The Nautilus came up the river last evening, and reports the Grafton as being at anchor in Trial Bay, waiting for the weather to moderate before crossing the bar. Most probably the Grafton came into the river yesterday, and, as the Nautilus goes down to-day, the mail and information of other news outside may reach us to-morrow. The New Moon is still inside.

The river has fallen twelve feet, and, if there is no immediate return of rain, will be at its usual level in a few days, but a great deal of damage has been done; fencing destroyed, farm produce washed away, and business of every description depressed.

The flooded state of the district prevented the meeting in reference to the electorate. It is now announced for Saturday, the 23rd.

During no previous flood since I have been in the district did the river rise so rapidly. Had the rain continued forty-eight hours longer, the residents on the north bank, and some on the south bank of the river, in the vicinity of Kempsey, would have been driven from their homes.

QUEENSLAND.

OUR dates from Brisbane are to the 19th, and from Rockhampton to the 16th instant.

Monday's Guardian states that, in January, 1863, George Bencliffe was convicted of horse stealing at the Toowoomba assizes, and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment. He "did his time" at the Brisbane gaol, and came out on Saturday to meet Senior-Sergeant Buckley, who held a warrant to apprehend him for horse stealing at Leyburn, to which place the offender will at once be forwarded.

The same paper says:—On Saturday afternoon last the committee of management of the Queensland Acclimatisation Society held a meeting at York's Hollow, for the purpose of devising a method for the arranging of the park, &c., which is situated there. Several members of the committee were in attendance. After inspecting the ground, which has been granted to the society (and since cleared and enclosed), the committee decided that the park lodge should be erected in the north-western corner. The laying out of the grounds, &c., was confided to the superintendence of a subcommittee, who will secure the assistance of Mr. W. Hill, the curator of the Botanical Gardens, for that purpose. The piece was named "Bowen Park." The quantity of ground enclosed is about thirty-two acres, and it seems to be admirably adapted for the use to which the society have applied it. There is a good deal of water there, and it will be easy to form ornamental ponds, where various kinds of water fowl, and aquatic plants can be reared. At the present time there is nothing very attractive in the aspect of Bowen Park. It has been cleared and stumped; but there is a quantity of dead wood and other debris which has to be removed. There are a few shrubs growing which are to be left as they are; and there are a few animals in the park, including some of the Chinese sheep lately received by the society.

The Courier of Tuesday mentions that the Bishop Metropolitan of Sydney held a visitation in St. John's Church the previous day. Service commenced at eleven o'clock, and the prayers were read by the Rev. J. Bliss. Nearly all the clergymen of the Church of England resident in Queensland were present. After the first portion of the service had been concluded, Bishop Barker delivered a somewhat lengthy address, which was listened to attentively by the large number of members of the Church of England who comprised the congregation.

THE GLADSTONE DIGGINGS, &c. — The Daily Guardian learns from a correspondent that the diggers in the vicinity of Gladstone are doing pretty well, there being about 300 men on the ground. The miners have been visited by the bushranger Wright, who, however, does not appear as yet to have committed any violence. A bullock-driver named Rabey, who was in the employment of Mr. Broadbent, of Rawbelle, was murdered at a place called Three-mile Creek, near Gladstone, on the 12th instant. The murderer had been engaged to bring down a team in company with his victim. It appears that the man (whose name is not mentioned) asked Rabey for £5, which the latter refused to give him. The other then rushed upon Rabey, and stabbed him in several places, mutilating him frightfully. The unfortunate man lived for about twenty-four hours. The murderer is in custody and a magisterial inquiry into the circumstances of the case is pending.

CALLIOPE, July 7th.—A correspondent says, writing to the same paper:—Lately this place has been exceedingly dull. The old ground has been quite worked out, and there was every probability of the place being partially deserted as soon as the lambing and shearing commenced. Fortunately, a new rush has broken out about six miles south of the old diggings, on the watershed of the Boyne River, and three or four miles from Riverstone, the horse station of the Hon. M. C. O'Connell. This rush far surpasses anything ever found in this neighbourhood before, and, except by a few Chinese, all the old gullies are deserted. I consider there are at least two hundred diggers on the ground at present, and new hands are arriving every day; so that a great rush is anticipated ere long. Luckily we are near a sea port, so that there is no danger of any scarcity of the necessaries of life arising from any large influx of population, as the storekeepers here are able to retail goods as cheap, or nearly as cheap, as in any part of Queensland. The new gully has been opened up for about a mile, a continuous lead having been found to exist the whole length—the upper part being dry and about twelve feet sinking, but the lower part is very wet, and requires to be slabbed. The gold found is water-worn and nuggetty. One small nugget, 1 oz. 18 dwts. has been found, and smaller bits are found often, from one to fifteen pennyweights.

THE MURDERER OF MR. OWEN AFTER SENTENCE.—We understand that Ritchie, after his condemnation, conducted himself in a very boisterous manner, cursing and swearing, his language during the night being the most profane. He has been quieter since that time, but still appears to entertain a hope that the sentence will not be carried into execution, for he has been heard to make remarks such as "I am not dead yet," in a surly and somewhat defiant tone.—Toowoomba Chronicle, July 14.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF QUEENSLAND SHOW, 1864.—The show this year, although not numerically so large as upon previous occasions, was yet excellent as to the merits of the stock, drawing forth decided approbation from all capable of exercising a discriminating judgment. Besides stock, for which alone prizes were awarded, Messrs. Fraser and Buckland, of Brisbane, very spiritedly exhibited a selection of machinery, &c. Amongst other articles were Barrett and Exall's two-wheel and swing plough, Hornsby and Grey's Scotch plough, iron harrows, whipple trees, chaff cutters and corn mills, and iron proof safes, &c., &c. The following were the prizes awarded by the judges appointed by the society:—Best ram lamb, (silver cup promised by R. Tooth, Esq., in 1860)—John Deuchar, Glengallan. Best pen of five rams—Marshall and Deuchar—silver medal; best pen of five ewes—ditto ditto ditto; best colonial bred cow—Isaac and De St. Jean, Gowrie—silver medal; second best colonial bred cow—M'Lean and Beit, Westbrook—second prize; best bred colonial bull—William Turner, Helidon—silver medal; best imported bull—W. B. Tooth, Clifton—silver medal. No competition: Best sow—John Watts, Eton Vale—silver medal; best sow and pigs—Isaac and De St. Jean, Gowrie—silver medal. Some splendid turnips and fine tobacco leaf were exhibited by Mr. Felgate, of Toowoomba.—Darling Downs Gazette, July 14.

CAPTURE OF FAGAN.—The intelligence brought to town by the Peak Downs mailman, on Sunday evening last, of the capture of Fagan, the bushranger, has, we

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—In your issue of the 1st instant, headed "Country Scenes," there is a most poetical description given of Port Macquarie. Now it may answer the purpose of a Government officer thus to while away his time, for want of something better to do, by sending forth such effusions, but for any practical purpose or benefit to this district such productions have a most injurious tendency. Take for instance the introductory and subsequent paragraph :—

1. "Port Macquarie, a 'household word' in New South Wales."

2. "This port is little known to most of the inhabitants of the present day." What can the public gather from such contradictions?

Next we have—

"A fine town to all intents and purposes." Now would not any practical man understand that a fine town to all intents and purposes would have a corresponding flourishing trade and commercial operations? How then could he understand this in connection with the following—

"I was completely bewildered with the forlorn state of things, empty houses and stores that cannot get tenants." Then the description of his rides with young ladies to the Lake, &c., the views there, the surrounding botany, attempted to be described in the powerful and effective language of the Times' correspondent, or the world-renowned Robins, he winds up, "can only be compared to the Botany Swamps."

In giving every particular of the trees, their height, colour, name, &c., he is faulty. The fig-tree is not covered with vines to the top, for it is itself a parasite feeding upon and killing the tree it surrounds; and their being "as thick as peas," puts on the finishing touch to this fine picture of the Lake and its scenery.

The reference to spiritual matters, the police, the happiness, peace, and security of the inhabitants, winding up with, "Oh, happy, happy people," is much more of the Sunday school than the descriptive writer of country scenes, and puts one in mind of that little children's hymn of

Oh! that will be joyful, joyful, joyful,
When we meet to part no more,
Oh! that will be joyful, joyful.

I will not comment upon such paragraphs as "then comes Tacking Point,"—the difficulty of getting out of the scrubs, and on horseback the absolute impossibility, without defining the supposed facility of getting in; the severity of a stinging tree if it kills a horse; the very mechanical description of the homely pews, 10 x 10, &c.;—but I must positively and plainly state that to say, "That the lands around Port Macquarie are not agricultural, and certainly not pastoral," is a gross libel on the district.

ANTI-HUMBUG.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—"Saxby" must be nearly related to the Clerk of the Weather for this district, or have a powerful friend at headquarters connected with the humid department of the season.

Fine weather had set in the past few weeks, and the views of the sceptical were that "Saxby's" predictions for the 13th would be a delusion and a snare; but all doubts or hopes were, on last Monday night or Tuesday morning, at an end, for rain came down in earnest, accompanied with squalls of wind from every quarter of the globe, and this continued until Thursday the 14th. The Macleay River soon assumed its usual grand dimensions, and even the Bishop of Newcastle could not with consistency now have called it "your little river." At Kempsey, one of its many townships, it soon rose bank high, carrying past on its course trees and logs of every variety and shape. Boats shot out from the bank as some stray produce or cedar log made its appearance, reminding me of my favourite little ditty of the "Spider and the Fly,"

"'Walk into my little parlour,' said the Spider to the Fly,
'It is the nicest little parlour that ever you did spy.'"

For they popped out from the bank, secured their prey, and were back again out of sight in a moment. Then there were the storekeepers making preparations to secure their stock-in-trade. One had his "schooner" up to his store floor some twenty feet above her usual position, and putting into her flour, tea, sugar, &c., thus keeping his speculations afloat—a new mercantile idea for Punch. Settlers were bagging up maize, and some packing up their traps, ready for the emergency that presented itself of soon having to move off. The wharfage-duty of the steamer Grafton and her tender Mastilus formed another subject of consideration among the good people here, in the midst of all these tempests of wind and water. The river steamer Firefly did not make her usual 1s. 6d. excursion trips down the river to bring us any news, for the very cogent reason, as the Macleay Herald would have it—"That she did not go down because she could not get up." The mails overland are as regular as usual—that is, in their irregularity, for, notwithstanding the immense exertions made by mailmen and contractors, the rivers and creek obey Mr. Saxby's universal law, and one goes up while the other goes down, and the local postmasters employ their leisure hours on foolscap, making reports on time-tables, &c., attaching thereto the tragic letters, P.M. Much as every person here appeared afraid of the floods, they ("like ladies, who are said, however much they may be afraid of storms, thunder and lightning, &c., never to be afraid to get married") enter in the midst of these inundations into the storms and tempests of matrimonial life. Mr. John Yamma, late of the Celestial Empire, entered into its bonds, being united by the Rev. Mr. Bows to Miss Ducott. The parents of the bride and friends of the bridegroom were present on the happy occasion, and the usual festive ceremonies of the Celestials were kept up for two or three days. The amount of injury and loss to the inhabitants I leave to your own correspondent, for I can gather nothing certain, but I believe nothing serious; for as most people here are disciples of Saxby, they will have had faith in their prophet's predictions, and made preparations for the 13th two or three days before, or two or three days after—if not too late.

I trust you will pardon my writing you without an introduction; but it has saved me from even the sin of even the thought of self-destruction in the midst of the surrounding waters and solitude of the Macleay, in these inundations.

I am, &c.,

RUST IN WHEAT.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—I have read many opinions expressed in your paper lately on rust in wheat, and I find that most people attribute the disease to the influence of the atmosphere. I feel much confidence in endorsing these opinions. At all events, I look upon it as the first cause, though doubtlessly hastened and fostered by bad tillage and want of drainage, &c.

I fancy that most people are under the impression that the rust has only shown itself within these last few years. If so, it is quite a mistake, as I have known whole fields to have been totally destroyed seven or eight years ago—my own amongst the rest. This disease has no doubt been creeping upon us for many many years, and last year arrived at its maximum height, but it is to be hoped that it will now gradually disappear, though (without wishing to be one of "Job's comforters") I cannot help thinking that we must expect many years to run their course before we see the last of it.

I find that a great many people advocate late sowing, but I completely disagree with them, for I have observed that all late wheat crops in rusty years have suffered the most, from the fact of the wheat stalks being in a green and delicate state when the rapid evaporation takes place in the early part of summer.

I cannot help thinking (though perhaps many will disagree with me) that the high ridges suffer the most, or the portions of a field that dry quickest.

It has been a practice with farmers in New South Wales (since the land became impoverished by constant cropping) to sow their wheat-fields very thick, for it is well known that wheat will not stool on very poor land, consequently farmers in many cases double the usual quantity of seed. The result is a crop of puny stalks, that can scarcely bear against a breeze of wind, much less the many other severe trials it has to undergo before it is fit for the sickle.

There is no doubt that if rust continues in the wheat even for a few years, it will greatly increase the pecuniary difficulties which the colony already labours under, and surely this matter demands as thorough investigation as scab in sheep, pleuro-pneumonia in cattle, or any other similar calamity that has overtaken us.

I am, Sir, yours obediently,

APPREHENSION.

MEYERBEER.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—In your issue of the 21st instant, I noticed a letter written by a Bernard Beer, relating to the great composer Meyerbeer's decease. I beg to state that I, being one of the musical world, entirely acquiesce in his views; it only remains, therefore, for the rest of the music lovers to take up this subject. I would also like to know, by the medium of your journal, whether Bernard Beer is in any way related to Meyerbeer.

I remain, Sir, yours truly,

THE EFFICACY OF SAXON OATHS.—Near the top of a gentle acclivity, a boy with a team, whom I had passed a little while before, came up. He was whipping his horses, who were straining up the ascent, and was swearing at them most frightfully in English. I addressed him in that language, inquiring the name of the crag; but he answered, "Dem Saesneg," and then fell to cursing his horses in English. I allowed him and his team to get to the top of the ascent, and then overtaking him, I said, in Welsh, "What do you mean by saying you have no English? You were talking English just now to your horses." "Yes," said the lad, "I have English enough for my horses, and that is all." "You seem to have plenty of Welsh," said I; "why don't you speak Welsh to your horses?" "It's of no use speaking Welsh to them," said the boy; "Welsh isn't strong enough." "Isn't Myn Diawl tolerably strong?" said I. "Not stong enough for horses," said the boy: "if I were to say 'Myn Diawl to my horses,' or even 'Cas Andras,' they would laugh at me." "Do the other carters," said I, "use the same English to their horses which you do to yours?" "Yes," said the boy, "they all use the same English words: if they didn't, the horses wouldn't mind them."—Borrow's Wild Wave.

There has been a fair amount of business transacted in the share market this week, buyers having come forward more freely. Bank shares continue to be sought after at full prices. The fluctuations that have taken place are as follows:—Bank of New South Wales shares are firm at quotations. Australian Joint Stock Bank shares are inquired for, and the old shares have improved 5s. per share. Union Bank shares have been dealt in at an improvement of 20s. per share. Bank of New Zealand shares have reduced 10s. per share. City Bank shares are not so firm, and have given way 2s. 6d. per share. Steam shares are very difficult of sale, and prices again rule lower. Australasian Steam Navigation shares have been sold at a decline of £2 per share. Hunter River New Steam shares have declined 5s. per share, and Illawarra Steam Navigation shares, 2s. 6d. per share; but at this price there are buyers. Insurance shares are now inquired for. General Assurance shares have been dealt in at an advance of 30s. per share on the last sale. United Insurance shares have changed hands to a large amount at full rates. New South Wales Marine and Sydney Insurance shares are steady at quotations. Pacific Fire and Marine Insurance shares are inquired for, but there are none in the market at present. Coal shares are exceedingly dull of sale, and prices nominal. The following are the rates at which sales have been made during the week. Union Bank, £50 per share; Bank of New South Wales, £43 per share—new shares, £42 13s. 4d. per share; Australian Joint Stock Bank, £14 per share—new shares, £13 15s. per share; Commercial Bank new shares, £12 and £13 premium per share; Bank of New Zealand, £13 and £12 10s. per share; City Bank, £10 12s. 6d, £10 15s., £10 12s. 6d. and £10 10s. per share; Australasian Steam Navigation Company, £24 per share; Hunter River New Steam Navigation Company, £14 15s. and £15 per share; Illawarra Steam Navigation Company, £3 15s. per share; General Assurance, £9 10s. per share; Sydney Insurance, £3 12s. 6d. per share; United Fire and Marine Insurance, 27s. 6d. per share; New South Wales Marine Assurance, £3 7s. 6d. per share; Cadiangullong Copper Mine (10s. paid), 25s. per share.

DEBENTURES.—New South Wales Government debentures are a little firmer. Terminables due in 1891 have changed hands at 100¾ and interest; Australasian Steam Navigation debentures, 101 and interest.

The following table will show the closing prices of our securities, as well as the rate at which sales have been made during the week,

The flour market is in a very disturbed state, and it is almost impossible to give correct quotations. The news from Valparaiso, via Auckland, received here on Tuesday, induced holders to be more disposed to quit at lower rates, but the reduction made was not sufficient to tempt buyers; hence little or nothing was done. The arrival of the Philomena, from Valparaiso, with a cargo of breadstuffs, has also contributed to depress prices; and sales, if forced, could only be made at a considerable reduction in late quotations. We understand that a small parcel of Californian was placed to-day at £25 per ton. Wheat is also lower, but has not been affected so much as flour. The price, however, is nominal.

There is no alteration (with the exception of flour) in our markets since our Summary, which was published in Thursday's issue.

The following general abstract, shewing the average amount of the liabilities and assets of the Union Bank of Australia within the colony of New South Wales taken from the several weekly statements during the quarter from the 1st April to the 30th June, 1864, is published in to-day's Gazette:—

LIABILITIES: Notes in circulation, not bearing interest, £34,640; bills in circulation, not bearing interest, £8661 0s. 3d.; deposits, not bearing interest, £196,406 10s. 2d.; bearing interest, £128,398 4s. 6d.: total amount of liabilities, £368,105 14s. 11d. ASSETS: Coined gold and silver, and other coined metals, £44,901 8s. 1d.; gold and silver in bullion or bars, £49,075 12s. 3d.; landed property, £14,000; notes and bills of other banks, £3699 15s. 7d.; amount of all debts due to the bank, including notes, bills of exchange, and all stock and funded debts of every description, excepting notes, bills, and balances due to the said bank from other banks, £294,354 0s. 7d.: total amount of assets, £406,030 16s. 6d. Amount of the capital stock paid up at the close of the quarter ended 30th June, 1864, £1,000,000; rate of the last dividend declared to the shareholders, 16 per cent. per annum; amount of the last dividend declared, £80,000; amount of the reserved profits at the time of declaring such dividend, £295,049 9s. 7d.

Messrs. Mort and Co. offered to-day at auction 76 casks of tallow, and sold 54. The tallow market was not so firm, and prices ruled easier. The prices obtained ranged from 26s. to 29s. per cwt. Hides were steady, and for first-class heavy hides top prices were realised. 1150 were catalogued, and about 1000 were sold, at from 7s. 9d. to 16s. each. The latter price was given for a lot of 60 heavy hides. Calfskins brought from 1s. 6d. to 2s. 8d. each.

Mr. James Graham sold to-day by auction, 34 casks of tallow, at from £26 10s. to £27 per ton for mixed, and £31 15s. for mutton; also 400 heavy hides, at 15s. 9d. to 16s. 6d. each.

Messrs. Durham and Irwin held their usual sale of tallow and hides, this day, Friday. Tallow: 101 casks were submitted, all of which were taken as follows:—Boiling parcels from Queensland, Collingwood, and Windermere at £29 5s. per ton. Mutton at from £30 5s. to £31 5s. Station at from £25 to £28 10s. per ton. Hides: 2365 were brought forward, and about 2200 sold. Several prime lots were placed at the following quotations:—19 at 16s. 3d., 226 at 15s 10d, 535 at 14s. 2d., 170 at 15s. 6d., 130 at 15s. 6d, 40 at 15s. 3d., 150 at 15s. 8d., 80 at 14s. 6d., 24 at 18s. The latter parcel consisted of a choice lot of bullock hides of extra weights, hence the extreme price obtained.

A portion of the copper from the Cadiangullong mines has arrived, and is advertised for sale by Messrs. Mort and Co. for Wednesday next.

MAITLAND MARKETS.

FRIDAY, July 22.—Business: The wholesale business has been tolerably brisk this week. The retail trade continues dull. The markets are without any change worthy of notice. Teas and sugars are reported to be very firm, but no actual change in quotations has been made.

Teas.—Congous, best brands, £9 10s to £10 10s per chest; ration teas, £8 to £8 10s per chest; hysonskin, £8 to £9 per chest.

Sugars, firm.—Company's No. 1, £48 per ton; crystals, £54; Mauritius, £46 to £50 per ton; ration, £36 to £45 per ton.

Oilmen's Stores.—Bottled fruits, 14s to 18s per dozen; pickles, 9s 6d to 11s 6d per dozen; sardines, ½-lb. tins 9s to 10s per dozen, ¼-lb. tins 13s 6d per dozen; English jams, 12s 6d to 14s 6d per dozen.

Brandy.—(Martell's), 24s to 25s per gallon; pale brandy, 42s to 60s per case. Gin (key brand), 45s to 50s per case. Whisky 25s to 40s per dozen.

West India Rum, 20 o.p., 16s to 18s per gallon.

English Ale and Porter, bottled, 12s 6d to 13s 6d per dozen; Bass's No. 1 ale, £7 to £8 per hogshead.

Rice.—Best Patna, £25 to £28 per ton.

Tobacco.—Colonial, manufactured from the pure Virginian leaf, 5s 6d per lb.; colonial tobacco, 1s 6d to 2s 9d per lb.; leaf tobacco, 6d to 10d per lb.; American negrohead, 4s; to 5s 6d per lb.; Cigars, 120s to 130s per 1000.

Carriage.—There is a good demand for horse teams. Many of the storekeepers object forwarding goods by bullock drays on account of the spread of pleuro-pneumonia.

Woolpacks.—10 lb. bags, 7s to 8s 6d each; 2-bushel bags, 24s to 27s per dozen.

Wool.—Very little has arrived, buyers are not inclined to operate at an advance which holders are asking in consequence of the recent news from England.

Flour.—There has been a fair amount of business transacted in flour, but the market has evidently a downward tendency. The news recently received, via Auckland, from different parts of America of the certainty of heavy shipments of breadstuffs to these colonies, contemporaneously with advices of similar shipments from England, has given confidence, and checked any disposition which before existed on the part of the principal consumers to purchase beyond immediate requirements. There is no change in the retail quotations, which remain as before, viz, fine 30s, seconds 28s per 100 lb.

Wheat.—No transactions in wheat are reported this week. It is said that Adelaide and other imported wheat may now be procured on easier terms than before.

Maize.—There has been very little business done in maize this week. The settlers think that prices should advance rather than recede, owing to the destruction caused by the floods; but as prices have declined in Sydney, the principal buyers refuse to operate unless at reduced rates. Some small parcels have changed hands at 3s 6d to 3s 9d per bushel.

Bran and Pollard.—There is a good demand for bran and pollard, and as stocks are rather bare, prices are firm £7 per ton wholesale, and 8s per 100 lbs. retail.

Hay.—The market has been rather dull this week, prices being out of proportion to those ruling in Sydney. Consumers are disinclined to meet the terms of holders except for small parcels. Sales of both oaten and lucerne hay have been made at £7 to £10 according to quality.

Bread, 6½d per 2lb. loaf wholesale, 7d retail,

Poultry.—Fowls 1s 6d to 2s per pair wholesale, 2s 6d retail; ducks 2s to 3s per pair wholesale, 2s 9d to 3s 6d retail; geese 5s to 6s per pair wholesale, 7s to 8s retail; cock turkeys 8s to 9s per pair wholesale, 10s to 11s retail; hen turkeys 5s to 7s per pair wholesale, 7s to 8s retail.

Farm and Dairy Produce.—Butter 10d to 1s per lb. wholesale, 1s to 1s 4d retail; eggs 8d to 10d per dozen wholesale, 1s to 1s 3d retail; bacon 8d to 9d per lb. wholesale, 10d retail; lard 6d per lb. wholesale, 8d to 9d retail; cheese 3d to 3d per lb. wholesale, 6d to 8d retail.

Vegetables.—Potatoes, old and new 7s to 8s per cwt. wholesale, 10d per lb. retail; cabbages 2s to 3s per dozen wholesale, 4d to 6d each; pumpkins 2s 6d to 4s per dozen wholesale, 4d per bunch retail; onions 16s to 20s per cwt. wholesale, 4d per lb. retail; vegetable marrows 4s to 5s per dozen wholesale, 6d to 8d each; turnips 1s 6d to 2s per dozen bunches wholesale, 3d per bunch retail; cauliflowers 4s per dozen wholesale, 6d each.

Butchers' Meat.—Beef 10s per cwt. wholesale, 2d per lb. retail; mutton 3d to 3½d per lb. wholesale, 4d to 5d per lb. retail; pork 5d to 6d per lb. retail; lamb 4s 6d to 5s 6d per quarter; veal 6d per lb.

Leather Market.—Maitland sole leather 10d to 1s per lb.; Sydney sole leather 1s to 1s 2d per lb; Maitland and Sydney kip 1s 2d to 2s per lb.; calfskins 3s to 5s per lb; French and English ditto 3s to 6s per lb.; harness leather 1s 1d to 1s 3d per lb.; basils 12s to 16s per dozen.

Tallow.—Boiling tallow £26 per ton, without casks; station tallow £25 to £28 per ton; soap 26s to 30s per cwt.; candles 8d to 8½d per lb.

Hides, 6s to 10s each.

DENILIQUIN STOCK REPORT.

Friday Evening, July 15.

We have no local sales to report this week. There is a demand for spayed cows of good quality, and they would meet with ready sale at remunerative prices.

145 head of mixed cattle left Yielema, on the Murray, for Bendigo, on Tuesday; they are reported fair cattle. Mr. Morris's lot, sold (548) to Mr. Murphy on the Goulburn, were delivered at Yielema on Monday, with the loss of one drowned. We hear of some parties intending to visit Adelaide for store sheep, while they entertain fears that the scab trail left by Mr. Urquhart on the Lower Murray, may tend to affect the sale of sheep passing through this part of Riverina. 1000 head of store lately arrived from the Upper Murray at Mr. William Hervey's station, Aratula, near Deniliquin.

The crossings this week have been—On Monday, 280 fat cattle, F. Parker, Yangar; on Thursday, 250 fat cattle, Jenkins, Murrumbidgee; same day, 220 fat, Webb and Anderson; Friday, 4700 fat sheep, Staughton, Darling; about 300 of this mob were lost on the Murrumbidgee.

Shepherd's mob of 200 fat and 300 store crossed the Billibong on Thursday, and a mob of fat, about 500, were about twenty miles this side of the Murrumbidgee same day. On the 8th, Mr Strickland's 540 fat, from the Lachlan, crossed the Murray at Tocumwal.

The following have crossed the Murray at or near Echuca:—Monday, 431 head fat cattle, Caldwell, Thule; Tuesday, 550 ditto, Morris, Lachlan; 123 ditto, O'Shanassy, Moira; 240 ditto, Gwynne, Edward (reported in our last); 250 ditto, Keighran, Murrumbidgee; Wednesday, 2000 fat wethers, Landale.—Pastoral Times.

PRESIDENTIAL PROSPECTS.

(From the New York Tribune, May 5.)

THOUGH we say very little with regard to the choice of our next President, we keep an eye on the sayings of others, and are far more amused than disconcerted by the confident calculations so generally made by our opponents that great advantages are likely to accrue to them from dissensions among those who have hitherto been united in a hearty support of the Government and the war for the Union.

What ground have they for this joyful expectation? Some of us think the War for the Union might have been pushed forward with more energy and resolution. Are we likely on that account to support in any contingency a Copperhead? Some of us think slavery might and should have been crowded to the wall much faster and more sternly than it has been; suppose this true, should we make anything by substituting for our present Administration one whereof Vallandigham and Voorhies, Long and Ben. Harris, would be chief spokesmen and champions? Some of us think Rebels, and especially Rebel spies, robbers and murderers, have in the main been treated too leniently. Are we likely on that account to help to elevate to power the party whose journals negatively and tacitly, if not openly and positively, uphold the butchery of our coloured soldiers by their Rebel captors? In short, is there a single point with regard to which we criticise our present rulers on which we should not make matters worse by aiding to elect a Copperhead President.

We beg you, gentlemen opposite! not to be deceived. We of the Union War party have our differences—they are earnest and of moment—but they are differences of faster and slower—of degree rather than of kind. We shall freely differ and discuss until we shall have made our nominations, then we shall rally as one man to elect them. We are making no personal pledges; we are only telling you what is morally certain to be. Cease, then, to count on our divisions, for they are very unlikely to profit you. They relate rather to questions of policy than to those affecting fundamental principles. The furthest apart among us are nearer each other than either extreme is to you.

On the other hand, the differences distracting our antagonists are fundamental, and scarcely admit of a compromise. They concern the most vital and absorbing questions of the day. Thus, of the three hundred thousands whose votes made Horatio Seymour Governor of our State, about half would never have cast their votes for a man they suppose capable of assenting to peace on such a basis as the Rebels exact; while the other half would joy to see the legions of Jeff. Davis and Lee triumphantly encamped in our city. And while these classes are manœuvring for the weather-gauge in the approaching presidential canvass, their chiefs amuse them with bulletins foreshadowing the speedy disruption and dissolution of the Union party!

So, while the trouble in our camp is being exultingly proclaimed and exaggerated, a real and vital division in the ranks of our enemies is made manifest. The "Peace" variety have become disgusted with their brethren of the contrary part, and refuse to fraternise further with them, and insist on placing the whole party on the "Peace" platform as a preparation for the approaching canvass. Thus the Vallandigham persuasion of Ohio Democrats have just issued, through their State Committee, "The Democratic Address to the People of Ohio," which says:—

That we regard the existing fratricidal war of the North and North-West upon the South to be wholly unconstitutional, as well as fruitless, wasteful, cruel, and ruinous to both sections of the United States.

That the democracy of the State of Ohio have heard with dismay the doctrines of its advocates, and shrink with horror from the sanguinary scenes which have desolated the land, by the hands of brethren in brothers' blood. That many democrats were themselves surprised into its unqualified support at the beginning; but that long since, seeing their constitutional mistake, and realising the utter hopelessness of coercion, they have now concluded to make what amends they could, by organising themselves into one compact, rugged, unflinching Peace party, for stopping the war on any terms whatever that would be fair between man and man. They are distinctly for peace and peaceable separation; for peace and mutual reconciliation; and they will positively and unanimously resist, by all suitable means, the further destruction of property and of life in such a cause. They take it for granted that each section is united on its policy, and that the Border States can hereafter decide for themselves separately; that there will be a fair settlement of the partnership accounts, and the freedom of the Mississippi River. As for border wars, after the oceans of bloodshed for three years past, we pronounce them impossible.

Consistently with the foregoing, they proclaim their hatred of War Democrats, with all their works and ways. Of the policy of the Peace party running a Union General for President, they forcibly say:—

These advisers, upon some general and superficial notion that all wars are popular, and military leaders the winning cards, while peace and Christianity are unpopular, and statesmen not likely to be elected Presidents, have been hinting at the canvass of a couple of Major-Generals who claim to be Democrats, and under certain circumstances talk respectfully of the Constitution. To nominate either Grant or M'Clellan would be suicidal. It must be preceded by wholesale apostacy from the ground covered by the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions, and so long hitherto the avowed creed of the Democracy, and for ever hereafter to be its only solid foundation. Let us beware of such a contradiction, for the sole result of it will be a Waterloo defeat. No such choice of candidates can have the undivided support of the Democracy; for the Peace party will not accept the nomination, but will put their own candidate upon their own platform of immediate peace and peaceable separation and State-Rights recognition, and, having coolly nailed that inscription to the mast, will clear the deck for independent action.

We beg our Democratic anti-Peace-at-any-price neighbours not to quote us as commending or indorsing all that is said above. Barking and biting are, happily, quite different matters. The "Peace" faction is—so far as we can judge—at least as numerous as its rival; but the staff is in the hands of the party managers, and they know better than to go into a Presidential election under the flag which Thomas H. Seymour, and Vallandigham, and so many others, have followed to their political ruin. The Copperheads will have to swallow a General for President, with a quasi-war platform, and in time shout themselves hoarse in honour of achievements they utterly condemn, and victories that, according to their logic, are worse than defeats. And this position, contradictory and unsound as it is, is that where-to "the party" is slowly and surely drifting.

MEN AND CLIMATES.—To a considerable extent the body adapts itself to the requirements of each climate. Volney went so far in saying that climate determines physiognomy as to see in the negro a face acted upon by sunlight and heat, with overhanging

THE TORRENS ACT.

I.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—The public are much indebted to Mr. Holden for his able and elaborate discussion of the new Real Property Act, in a series of letters recently published in this journal. It is evident that, so far as he is concerned, neither industry nor ability are wanting to carry the Act into efficient operation, and to suggest such amendments as it may require.

I quite agree with Mr. Holden that the public should be cautioned against expecting too much from the new system; and that its friends should not shrink from a full discussion of any defects which may be detected, in order that by successive amendments it may be brought to the highest state of perfection of which the system will admit. Nothing is so likely to bring the measure into discredit as to represent it as a certain and easy solution of all the difficulties connected with the holding and transfer of real property. A system under which it should be proposed to supersede the whole pharmacopœia by a single pill would naturally be regarded with suspicion and subjected to a close scrutiny, and would probably bring little credit to its projectors. In making a candid enquiry into the merits of the new system of transfer, it must be borne in mind that it is no answer to an objection, that the case of difficulty proposed is quite exceptional and likely to occur rarely; for it is precisely these cases which seem exceptional, and likely to occur rarely, which give rise to more than half the difficulties under the old system.

There are some defects in the Act, which are obvious, and require immediate amendment; and there are others for which it does not seem easy to devise an adequate remedy. The elaborate system which has hitherto been in vogue with respect to real property, and the trouble and doubt which have always attended it, notwithstanding the vast amount of labour and ability which has been employed in its formation and amendment, indicate with certainty that there are real and substantial difficulties to be dealt with. It is an ignorant mistake to suppose that the intricate system hitherto in use has been devised and maintained by lawyers interested in aggravating the complexity of conveyancing, and the chances of doubt and litigation. That system has grown up generally, being principally the work of distinguished lawyers and statesmen holding positions far removed from the influence of any such temptation.

Allowing, then, that great difficulties remain, although the subject has been so long and so carefully considered, it is clear that any system which proposed to get rid at once of the greater part of them in a concise and practical manner should be regarded with a wholesome suspicion; and, although its general merits be apparent, its details should be most carefully considered and freely criticised.

The question of priority of titles which Mr. Holden discusses in his first letter, is one of peculiar importance. According to the law as it now stands, the person who first receives a certificate of title takes priority over any one obtaining a subsequent certificate; that is, if after the delivery of the first certificate another person obtains a certificate of title to property overlapping or including the property embraced in the former certificate, such subsequent title is so far void. The person, then, who first gets a certificate has a perfect holding title from which he cannot be deprived during his lifetime. But as every transfer, whether by sale, devise, or descent, requires a fresh certificate, any such transfer, according to Mr. Holden's interpretation,—which is no doubt the correct one,—would occasion a loss of priority. This state of the law requires the immediate attention of the Legislature, for it leads to the most startling results. The person who registers his title, instead of thereby obtaining in all cases a certain security, is liable to have his title, so far as concerns any power of dealing with his property, partly or wholly defeated by any subsequent registration of property overlapping or including his own. A transfer by the new certificate holder would reinvest the property in the original holder, and the title might thus oscillate backwards and forwards without a possibility of settlement except by agreement between the rival claimants. When the business in the Registry Office becomes extensive, it is difficult to see how a purchaser will be able to satisfy himself that the certificate of title has not been wholly or partly superseded by some subsequent registration. This is merely an accidental defect, and may be remedied; but that a measure which was intended, and which I hope may be made, to settle definitely in whom the legal title to any particular property vests should involve a simple and perfectly good title in such a hopeless perplexity affords a curious illustration of the danger of dealing hastily with so difficult a subject.

Mr. Holden proposes, and I think with reason, that the Act should be amended by providing that the priority of the original title shall not be lost by subsequent transfer, but shall descend to all those claiming under the same root of title, which would thus be made for ever secure against any subsequent registration by another claimant. This would be a great improvement; but we should only deceive ourselves by supposing that every cloud of doubt would be thus removed from a registered title, for the doubt would still in some cases remain whether the certificate were not void by reason of a prior registration of the same property. It cannot be expected that perfection should be attained all at once; and the success of the measure may be best secured by thoroughly sifting any difficulties which seem likely to arise.

Suppose that A, having a perfectly good title under the old system to certain lands, conveys a portion of them to B, whose title thus becomes also unimpeachable. Suppose that A dies and his heir or devisee, unaware of the conveyance of a portion, and without fraud, registers the whole; B, his heirs or assigns, receiving no actual notice, which might easily happen in a variety of ways, B's title would be thus destroyed; and if under no disability, then, after six years, his claim to compensation from the insurance fund, or against the land, or personally against A's successor who registered, would be absolutely gone. If, after A had sold to B, A's successor should sell the whole, or a portion, of the same land to C, then B and C might both register, and still the title of one of them must be bad, although the fact might not be discovered for an indefinite time. It is thus apparent that a person claiming under B, and having a perfect title under the old system, would not in all cases, even after registration, show a marketable title, except by proving from the nature of his previous title, or as an actual fact, that no prior registration could or had affected his own. This would require either an examination of the title according to the old plan, or a search in the Registry Office, which, when the business becomes large, might be scarcely practicable. It must be remarked that a registration of property by no means precludes the possibility of the subsequent registration of another, including or overlapping it. I know of an instance where this might actually have happened but for the unusual vigilance of a very acute lawyer whose personal interests were concerned.

All these things may be set right in the end, but under the law as it now stands, there is no limit to the number of supposable cases under which confusion may arise. For instance, the heir of a landholder who has sold a lease of his property for a long term, might register his title to the freehold; and if from any cause the tenant should fail to interfere to save his rights, he would lose his title; and if he did not discover what had been done within six years, he would find himself destitute of any remedy, although during the whole time he or his sub-tenants might have been quietly in possession. Such things could scarcely happen under the old system, and it is necessary that the new Act shall be so amended as to render them equally impossible under the present.

If all the alienated lands in the colony were brought under the operation of the Act, similar uncertainties might still arise, for a person might sell or devise his property in parcels, the descriptions of which might overlap one another, and a smaller allotment might even be squeezed out between two larger ones on account of errors in the descriptions; and the sufferer, although registered and in full possession, might be ousted at any minute, and after the lapse of six years during which he apprehended no danger, his remedy in any shape might be gone. In settling a similar difficulty under the old system, a Court of Equity would not be bound by the letter of the descriptions, but would receive evidence to enable them to determine from the instrument, what was intended to pass, and would adjust the various rights according to reason and justice. Whether a Court of Equity could interfere in a similar manner under the new system is at all events doubtful; and such interference, if lawful, would go far to disturb that certainty as to titles which it is the main object of the present system to secure.

I make these remarks in no unfriendly spirit to the principle of the new measure, the general expediency and prospective advantages of which we have always maintained; but we think that those benefits will be best secured by bringing forward and taking at once by the horns any difficulties, real or imaginary, that may be suggested, with a view to their ultimate subjugation.

A FOX KILLED BY A LAMB!—John Lamb, farmer, Furin, Seafan, Glenlivat, the other day, while passing along a hillside in that neighbourhood, had his attention arrested by the gambols of what he thought to be a dog, but which, on his nearer approach, he discovered to be a fox. The wily Reynard, however, on seeing the man, disappeared in a hole in the cleft of a rock, where John made a fierce assault on him with his feet. The fox retaliated by making a sudden spring on his assailant, doing considerable damage to one of his eyes. The animal attempted to escape, but in jumping out of the hole, Lamb caught him by the tail, and handled him so severely as to beat the life out of him.—Banffshire Journal.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

FROM THE 20TH TO THE 22ND JULY.

ON Wednesday evening last a "black" troupe, calling themselves the Campbell Minstrels, made their debut before a Sydney audience at the School of Arts. Although the house that greeted their first appearance was not quite so encouraging as it might have been, there nevertheless appears but little doubt, from the nature of the entertainment which they provide, that they will receive a liberal share of public support.

The Lancashire Bell Ringers voluntarily gave their services at an entertainment at the Destitute Children's Asylum, at Randwick, on Wednesday last, in the presence of the 450 children and the directors and friends of that institution. The Bell Ringers played before a very large audience at St. Patrick's, on Thursday night. They left by the mail yesterday.

Mr. Williamson, the patentee of a steam washing machine, has recently erected one of his steam machines for the P. and O. Company, near the Dry Dock, Waterview Bay, Balmain. The machine is a very large one, capable of washing 1000 pieces a day, and has been put up in a two-roomed weatherboard shed, which has been erected for the purpose.

It has been proposed to give a "Meyerbeer memorial concert" at Sydney, in honour of the great composer of the operas "Les Huguenots," and "Le Prophète."

The death of a prisoner named John Smith (under committal to take his trial for larceny), recently took place, under melancholy circumstances, in the Queanbeyan Gaol. There appeared to be but too much reason for supposing that the man's death was accelerated by the want of proper appliances at the gaol for the treatment of his case.

Kangaroos on the Lower Murrumbidgee are increasing in such numbers as to make the grass consumed by them a matter of moment to the settlers. If these useless animals continue to augment their number, co-operation must be effected in order to have periodical battues after the manner of those held in the Wimmera country.

A man at Goulburn, who gave his name as Bryan, was apprehended last Saturday, on suspicion of being the robber Morgan. It appearing, however, that this person was not the party "wanted," he was, after examination, discharged from custody.

On Sunday last a man named Abbey and his wife, residents at Grabben Gullen, were drowned whilst attempting to cross Wattle Creek, near Goulburn.

A number of persons met at the Newtown School of Arts on Wednesday evening last, with a view to the formation of a singing class. The meeting was so far encouraging that it is probable its object will be realised if the building should continue to be used as a School of Arts.

The jury that sat upon the inquest as to the origin of the late fire in King-street returned an open verdict —"not having evidence to show how the fire originated."

A tea party to celebrate the second anniversary of the Rev. Dr. Steel's ministry, was held in the Temperance Hall, last Thursday evening. Between three and four hundred persons, consisting chiefly of members of the congregation of the Free Church in Macquarie-street, partook of tea, for which liberal provision had been made. Several ministers of religion belonging to the different divisions of the Presbyterian body, and also to other denominations, were on the platform.

A REPUBLICAN GENERAL.—Six years ago General Grant occupied a little farm to the south-west of St. Louis, whence he was in the habit of cutting the wood and drawing it to Carondelet, and selling it in the market there. Many of his wood purchasers are now calling to mind that they had a cord of wood delivered in person by the great General Grant. When he came into the wood-market he was usually dressed in an old felt-hat, with a blouse coat, and his ants tucked in the tops of his boots. In truth, he bore the appearance of a sturdy and honest woodman. This was his winter's work. In the summer he turned a collector of debts, but for this he was not qualified. He had a noble and truthful soul; so that when he was told that the debtor had no money he believed him, and would not trouble the debtor again. He was always at work at something, but did not possess the knack of making money. His habits of life were hardy, inexpensive, and simple. On a cold day, when he brought a load of wood to the Carondelet market, he would take something to keep himself warm. This is the foundation of many reports of his inebriety.—The Milwaukie.

MORT and CO. have received instructions from the proprietor to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, at 11 o'clock on TUESDAY, 9th August,
That valuable pastoral property,
BOXVALE,
consisting of four large blocks of very superior sheep country, (and distant about twenty-two miles from the well-known and excellent run MOUNT HUTTON, belonging to Messrs Kent, Weinholt, and Thelwall,) comprising the main heads of the Dawson River, and the extensive country within the watershed of the same. The run consists chiefly of very beautiful undulating red soil, stony ridges, very lightly timbered, principally with box, and portions with myall and saltbush, and IS ABUNDANTLY WATERED.
Boxvale is situate about 250 miles from Rockhampton and Dalby, the proposed terminus of the Great Southern and Western Railway now being rapidly constructed.
The improvements are of a very substantial character, capable of working upwards of 30,000 sheep, and comprise—
Superintendent's cottage, with store, kitchen and men's huts.
An excellent paddock, nearly two miles in circumference.
Slaughtering and horse yards.
An excellent woolshed.
Seven sheep-station huts, with dog-proof double yards, each 50 x 100 yards, at each station, and a quantity of hurdles.
With Boxvale will be sold the following sheep:—

1,964, more or less, maiden ewes
1,146, more or less, ewes, 2½ years old

2,670, more or less, mixed weaners
147, more or less, rams

The sheep are superior, and bred from some of the best blood in Queensland, the proprietor having culled his flocks extensively, being principally the produce of rams from the Glengallan, Felton, Gowrie, and Rosalie flocks.
Also,
500 more or less, HEAD OF CATTLE,
a mixed well-bred herd, and remarkably quiet.
. Stores to be taken at cash price, with carriage added, and teams, drays, horses, implements, &c., to be taken at a valuation.
The estimated grazing capabilities of Boxvale are at least 40,000 to 50,000 sheep in all seasons, and could by a moderate outlay be readily increased to 60,000 to 70,000 sheep.
☞ In directing the attention of the public to the sale of this very valuable pastoral property, MORT and CO. would desire to impress upon intending purchasers the season of the year, and remind them of the great advantages accruing to the purchaser of this property by the near approach of the LAMBING and SHEARING SEASONS.
